QUEEN MARIE sat in the Mayor's big chair in New York's City Hall, then went her way. Immediately one woman after another sat in the chair, revealing the survival of Fetishism in modern times. The savage, buried in us, believed that inanimate objects have spiritual power and consciousness.

A child kicking the table that hurt its head, and a woman slitting in the Queen's chair are fetish worshippers, as much as the African witch doctor who carries in his magic bag part of the human brain for cunning, a lion's hair for bravery, the claw of a tiger, a serpent's fang, etc.

IN HER FIRST message to Americans on American soil, Queen Marie says:

"I am just a woman of fifty, who is brimful of joy and excited pleasure at the thought of seeing you."

American ladies that are fifty and trying to look fifteen, please take notice. It is better to be a natural, joyful woman at fifty than a poor painted lady with your face lifted, paraffine under your eyes, rouge on your lips, flesh-colored silk stockings showing your knees, with no object in Boston police today set out in search of Johnny Genna of Chicago for questioning regarding the North End gang murders of "Big Brooklyn" Gaglione, and his lieutenant, Michael DiPietro.

The introduction of Genna into the case links the Boston murders with the reign of terror in Chicago's gang warfare, where three of Johnny Genna's brothers were shot down in the streets by machine guns, one of them at the same time that Assistant District Attorney William H McSweeney was killed in Cicero, his suburb outside Chicago.

Middies Parade Before Queen in Downpour

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 20.—Booming of guns from the sea wall welcomed Queen Marie and her royal Rumanian entourage to Annapolis and the United States Naval Academy at 10:53 a. m. today.

The party had traveled forty miles over rain-swept roads from Washington under escort of a troop of Maryland State police. The entourage proceeded directly to the home of the academy superintendent.

Admiral Nulton formally received the queen, Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas as they stepped from their automobiles under the protection of a canvas canopy.

The royal visitors remained under the canopy with Admiral Nulton, J. Butler Wright, Assistant Secretary of State, and Charge Djuvara of the Rumanian Legation, while the queen reviewed the regiment of midshipmen.

The four academy classes, in full dress uniform, swept by the rain drenched reviewing stand, arms at present.

WIDOW GETS $12,500 FROM RICH MILL OWNER

New York, Oct. 20.—The breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Adie Louise Bailey Jones, a widow, against John Thwaites, millionaire Massachusetts mill owner, has been settled out of court for $12,500, it was learned today.

Mrs. Jones sued for $250,000.

Mrs. Jones alleged in her suit that she met Thwaites while he was buying materials for his wife in the department store where Mrs. Jones was employed. Thwaites, who is fifty years old, courted her in person and with love letters.

One of these letters introduced at the trial said that "When a grown-up married woman calls me daddy it makes me feel like a turtle would in an airplane."

She is the first ruler of a foreign country who has visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. NAVAL CADETS HONOR QUEEN ON VISIT TO ANNAPOLIS dressed in the uniform of a lieutenant of the Rumanian navy.

Despite the weather the queen was greatly impressed by the snappy maneuvers of the blue-clad cadets.

Turning to Admiral Nulton, she said:

"It is perfectly unjustifiable to have such beastly weather after such a glorious day yesterday."

Immediately after the review the royal party was escorted into Admiral Nulton's home, where the officers of the academy and their wives were presented to Queen Marie.

Tea was served before the queen prepared for another drive through the rain to Baltimore, 25 miles away.

BALTIMORE GREETS QUEEN.

In the latter city she was scheduled to hold a public reception at the War Memorial and to attend a luncheon by civic and social leaders.

Late this afternoon she will entrain for New York, where she will rest until starting her long tour of the country Thursday.

Cheering crowds were out early in Washington today when the royal party departed in a driving rain.

Promptly at 8 a. m. Queen Marie, her children, Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana, and the royal entourage pulled away from the Rumanian Legation for Annapolis. In the long line of automobiles rode her entire party including ladies-in-waiting, American naval and military aides and personal friends. A detail of Maryland State police escorted the caravan.

The Queen made the trip in a cold drizzling rain.

WILL TRAVEL AS QUEEN.

With her departure from Washington Queen Marie lost her status as a guest of the government and became a tourist enjoying extraordinary privileges. Her trip from now on is in the hands of the railroads, the reception committees of the cities she will visit and the watchfulness of the Secret Service agents of the State Department.

Marie, however, will tour as a queen. Asked about the future of her journey through America, she replied:

"I shall travel as a Queen. I am a queen and I can picture myself as nothing else."

The royal party faced a busy day before returning to New York.

A review of the midshipmen and other naval displays had been arranged at Annapolis, while at Baltimore the Queen was scheduled to hold a public reception at the World War Memorial.

The Queen let it be known today that she will not visit California, as planned originally, and that press representatives will be barred from her train for the rest of her trip because of her desire for privacy.

OMITS TRIP TO WEST.

Colonel John H. Carroll, general counsel of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in charge of her itinerary, said that difficulties with the Southern Pacific Railroad, which refused to grant a rate of $1 for transporting her special train over its lines, were responsible for the elimination of San Francisco, Los Angeles and other California cities from her route.

Marie left behind her ample evidence of her enterprising nature.

When President and Mrs. Coolidge visited the Rumanian Legation to pay her their respects they found to their surprise, a group of Kleig lights and three portrait photographers. The concern which made the coveted pictures had exclusive privileges. All others were barred.

Hint Rumania to Seek U. S. Loan After Marie Departs

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Today's New York World says:

"Soon after Queen Marie leaves these shores the Rumanian government will offer to the American public a bond issue ranging from $20,000,000 to $50,000,000. Before the loan is marketed Rumania will improve her balance sheet.

"She has been negotiating a loan here since 1924, but was unable to get funds, bankers said, because of defaults on outstanding English and French bonds, the mining laws of 1924 prohibiting entry of foreign capital in the oil fields except under Rumanian control, and the unsettled political conditions."

On the other hand, the New York Times says:

"Reports that Rumania was about to obtain a loan in the United States, inspired by the visit of Queen Marie to this country, received no credence in the financial district. For several years there has been unofficial discussion of a Rumanian loan, but it has never reached the stage of negotiations and is not likely to do so in the near future, according to Wall street bankers."

Cut Train Rates for Queen Are Declared Legal

Washington, Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Queen Marie's sudden refusal to go to California, which has been coupled with the decision of the Southern Pacific Railroad to require her to pay her way on any such trip, has led to numerous inquiries here as to the legal status of the arrangements she has made with other roads.

It was explained today that these concessions were secured in a perfectly legal way, although it took a special order of the Interstate Commerce Commission to accomplish it.

The law prohibits absolutely free transportation except for railroad employes, but permits the commission to make rates which are entirely nominal, provided the railroads concerned consent.

Under this provision nine railroads got the commission's consent to a special passenger rate schedule.

QUEEN MARIE FAVORS VOTING BY WOMEN

Washington, Oct. 20.—Queen Marie discussed equal suffrage in her first exclusive interview while she was resting for a moment before going in to lunch at Mt. Vernon. She was asked if she was in favor of equal suffrage and she answered quickly:

"Oh, yes, but it depends on the condition of the country. You see, in my country, there are as many men as women, and everyone gets married, so there is no problem as the men vote."

She interrupted the whole discussion about politics by exclaiming:

"The prettiest earrings I ever saw are owned by Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris. Have you ever seen them? They are two large pearls, one black and one white."

Mrs. Morris was standing near by and beamed with pleasure.

I asked the Princess about her views on suffrage and at first she said: "Oh, it depends." Then she blushed and said: "The truth is I don't bother my head about such things."

I asked Queen Marie about her impression of Mt. Vernon and she replied:

"It is altogether lovely and made me think of certain very old English houses I have seen. But, then, why shouldn't it? They were once English colonials."

The Queen said she usually bought most of her clothes at Jean Patou's and certainly he was in high favor today, for all the gowns worn by both Queen Marie and Princess Ileana were from Patou.

At the President's dinner she wore a simple but very elegant gown of white crepe-de-chine with a short train draped from one shoulder. The gown, itself, is the same length as the dresses for day wear. Her jewels were diamonds and sapphires, several of which belonged to members of the Russian royal family.

The Queen also wore a Rumanian decoration and a decoration presented to her during the war by the Queen of Rumania.

Queen Often Led Into Little Escapades

by Marie Queen of Rumania

Of all despicable traits, falseness seems somehow the worst.

There is something unforgivable, something utterly contemptible and disgusting about the man or woman who is deliberately false to his friend.

My own nature happens to be sincere, guileless. Falseness is to me almost incomprehensible and I hate it so fiercely perhaps because I am not armed against it. I cannot THINK falseness, so I CAN be caught in its traps.

When I was very young I had a lady-in-waiting of the same age as I. We were both gay, could both occasionally be "giddy," could "kick over the traces." I was very fond of her, confided in her unreservedly, treated her as a friend.

I was perhaps the more careful of the two, although she was the one who used to invent the amusements, encouraged my daring, egged me on. Many a cheerful little naughtiness did we plan together. Carried them out, too! We laughed and joked and I, for one, was never very cautious what I did or said.

Trustful, unsuspicious, I would go ahead, caring little how things looked, but with never an ill thought.

More and more often, however, I used to get into trouble, be scolded, be, so to say, "found out." I began to wonder why all my little escapades got known about, and why I had to pay so undeservedly heavily for the slightest, stupidest little thing.

At last I began losing my pleasure in our fun. It was not worth while doing risky things if one had to pay so heavily for them. Yet I noticed that my friend more than ever urged me on.

By degrees life became entirely unsupportable. Everything was grudged me. I had only to propose a thing and it would be refused. My house became a prison, my husband an angry jailer.

What was going on?

Suddenly I found out.

My lady companion was betraying me all the time—leading me into temptation, procuring me amusements I could quite well have done without, taunting me with ironical words, pretending an eagerness she did not feel. She deliberately induced me to do things I should not have done, doing them with me, and then selling me to those who had the right to reprove and punish me, and curtail my liberties.

She was false, abominably, utterly false, with a deliberate, planned-out falseness I thought existed only in stories.

Beware of the false man or woman! They are capable of anything, and the more trusting you are, the more they seem to delight in betraying.

QUEEN SMOKES AMERICAN CIGARETTES

Washington, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The diamond crown worn upon shingled, permanently-waved locks is not the only sign of modern feminity displayed by Marie, Queen of Rumania, for she smokes American cigarettes and likes them, and, furthermore sees no harm in the use of a lipstick to enhance her royal good looks.

So declared her spokeswoman, the lady in waiting, Madame Simonzo Lahovary, in answering questions today of reporters. Madame Lahovary described a queen who is modern and human, feminine as well as regal.

LIKES U. S. TOBACCO.

"Yes, the queen smokes a few cigarettes daily, although she is by no means an investuate smoker," she said. "She does not permit the Princess Ileana to smoke."

"We have brought some Rumanian cigarettes with us, but the queen has also smoked some American brands, and likes them very much," she added.

"She never uses rouge," continued the vivacious Madame Lahovary. "Although she sees no harm in the occasional use of a lipstick her color is entirely natural. I wish you might have seen her complexion when she was a young girl—it was simply ravishing."

Asked about the number of fur coats in the wardrobe of the queen, Madame Lahovary estimated "several grey ones, a sable and an ermine evening wrap, the moleskin coat you saw her wearing; she must have over half a dozen."

Royalty changes its clothes several times daily.

"About four costumes a day are usually required by the queen," she said. "She takes great pleasure in well-appointed costumes, and makes a point of having matching hats and coats for every gown. She usually orders her clothes from Paris houses after studying special sketches sent her by the designers."

TEACHER TORTURES CHUM 30 HOURS

New York, Oct. 20 (I.N.S.).—Professor Joseph Carson tortured for two days and almost beat to death his friend, Professor Lawrence L. Bauermeyer in a drunken argument over philosophy. One is instructor at Columbia University and the other at New York University.

Instead of taking their classes at their respective universities Monday they met at Bauermeyer's apartment in Madison avenue. They consumed much bootleg liquor and in their discussion of philosophy differences arose which greatly angered Carson.

According to the story Carson told at the E. 67th street police station the two were classmates at Princeton, had been close friends for nine years.

On Monday they decided to debate their differences. The debate degenerated into a heated argument. Carson picked up a shoo and bent his fraternity brother over the head as he lay on a couch half stupefied with liquor.

He struck him again and again, and when his arm became tired, he took another drink. This went on until 10 o'clock Monday night, when the fightful appearance of Bauermeyer from the many wounds on his head caused Carson to administer first aid and go to his own home.

But yesterday noon he went back to Bauermeyer's to finish the debate. They had more liquor and Bauermeyer was unyielding in his stand. Carson lost his temper and knocked his man to the floor.

At Bellevue Hospital doctors did not expect Professor Bauermeyer to live through the day.

Carson was admitted to $10,000 bail.

CRY 'FRAME-UP' IN POLICE SPY CASE

Salem, Oct. 20—Catherine McDermott and James Letts, self-declared "stool pigeons" for prohibition enforcers, were "framed," it was charged today in Superior Court by their counsel, Michael Reardon, defending them on a charge of stealing and receiving automobile tires.

Summing up in the case, Atty. Reardon declared the underworld, fearful of the activities of the couple who figured prominently in the hearing given Sheriff Henry H. Cummings of Kennebec County when he was removed from office several months ago, wanted to set them out of the way.

Sheriff Cummings was expected to testify today for the prosecution in rebuttal, but he failed to appear.

On trial also is Stanley Ryan, alias Ray Leonard, a boxer, charged with the same offences.

Four other defendants went on trial originally, but Charles J. Carroll and John J. Haggerty turned State's evidence, Leo Sullivan pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods and Judge Lourie ordered a verdict of not guilty against Leo Jolly.

Interest in the case was directed toward mention of Sheriff Cummings' name by Letts while testifying about rum-runners and to testimony of Miss McDermott that she had received money at York, Portland and Augusta for work as a liquor spy.

The case will go to the jury today.

2 FAMILIES FLEE BLAZE; SEEK FIREBUG

Flames, which police say were started by an incendiary, drove out two families today at No. 30 Mozart street, Jamaica Plain, in the heart of a thickly populated tenement district.

An immediate investigation was begun by fire officials and Jamaica Plain police, and an arrest was momentarily expected.

The fire swept up the rear piazza of the three-story tenement building, filling the first and third floors with smoke. Mrs. Florence Solari, on the first floor, discovered the flames. She aroused her husband, Victor; her son, Victor, Jr., and her daughter, Marie, 7, a child dancer. She and her son fought the flames with buckets while her husband summoned the fire department.

Mrs. Florence Monarch, on the third floor, led her six-year-old son to safety. Mr. and Mrs. John Haggerty, on the second floor, were preparing to leave when their fears were calmed by firemen.

Deputy Fire Chief Quigley of the Jamaica Plain district said he found a heap of paper at the foot of the piazza where the fire started. He was convinced, he said, that the blaze was the work of an incendiary.

SALM PREFERS SON TO HIS TITLE

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Count Ludwig Salm-Hoogstraten values the company of his two-year-old son, Peter, more than his Austrian title.

His counsel have revealed that Count Salm is preparing to seek American citizenship in order to validate a suit against his estranged wife for legal separation and custody of their child.

Peter is now in custody of his mother, Millicent Rogers Salm, heiress to $40,000,000 of Standard Oil Company money. Last January Count Salm threatened to sue for custody of Peter, but was forestalled when the Countess Millicent granted her husband permission to see the boy daily in Palm Beach. Count Salm availed himself of the privilege for a few days and then sailed for Europe.

Supreme Court Justice Mitchell reserved decision yesterday after hearing argument on an application of the Countess for production of her husband's citizenship declarations as made to immigration authorities when he came to this country last December.

Attorneys for the Countess contended that the manifest would show that at the time he was an alien visitor, thus depriving him of the legal right to start suit for separation in this State.

Counsel for Count Salm in answer argued his client was living here when the suit was filed, thus creating a "physical residence." He returned to Europe in order to comply with alien citizenship requirements, counsel said.

League Is Involved in Free Trade Scheme

Paris, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Cessation of flag discrimination in ocean-carrying trade, abolition of passport visas and an end to ad valorem duties are the non-detailed suggestions made by Sir Arthur Balfour to carry out the principles of the international bankers' manifesto, in a report approved today by the Council of the International Chamber of Commerce.

The report demands protection of economic rights of foreigners in all lands by uniform laws and absolute freedom of travel by air, rail and sea with standardization of rolling stock to facilitate communications from one country to another.

It calls for ratification of the League of Nations' freedom of ports convention, and says traffic in war material ought to be exempt from export duties.

FOR LEAGUE COMMISSION

The report closes with the suggestion that the League of Nations organize a commercial and tariff commission, bringing together representatives of the various governments to consider international trade questions.

Europe is in the slough of economic despond, with only misleading fictitious prosperity in countries of depreciated exchange, Sir Alan Anderson, director of the Bank of England and acting president of the International Chamber of Commerce, told the Chamber's council today. This condition he blamed on protective tariffs.

"Depression, poor exports and under-employment are features of the general reports concerning Europe," said Sir Alan. "Europe is divided by twenty-eight frontiers and pervaded with inflation, contrasted sadly with the prosperity of the United States, whose currency policy is stable and whose wide territory has no internal barriers."

"FREE TRADE" REMEDY."

Sir Alan said France was being impoverished by her export trade.

Germany, said the speaker, still was in a convalescent stage, she was getting better, but her full recovery was hampered by hostile tariffs.

Free trade, the speaker concluded, was the only remedy. "The nations must pull down their trade barriers before they revive," he said. "Facts in our national committee reports prove that we are right in this conception and that inflation is the first barrier that must be attacked."

U. S. Tariff Policy Will Be Unchanged

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The manifesto issued by bankers and industrialists of sixteen countries, appealing for the removal of tariff barriers as a specific for the financial and economic ills of Europe has been received with praise in Great Britain and Germany, but with mild skepticism in France.

It is stated in financial circles here that in no instance or form may the manifesto be considered a plea for free trade or as an invitation to the United States to revise its tariff

Boston Financiers Disagree on World Free Trade Proposal

The "free trade" manifesto signed by leading financiers of Europe and America and just made public, brought both praise and condemnation today from Boston bankers and others, although there appeared, in later dispatches, to be some misunderstanding of the manifesto's import, even among the signers.

Announced first as an urging to remove tariffs in all countries in an effort to aid Europe's trade and help her regain her feet, the economists' manifesto was declared today by Thomas Nelson Perkins, a Boston signer, to have nothing to do with America.

It is on a supposition that a lifting of American tariff is advocated that the following Hub comments were based:

GEORGE S. MUMFORD, president, Atlantic National Bank—World free trade is, of course, an ideal condition and a goal worth striving for. But it is an impossibility. All the nations of the world will never agree to free trade.

When you tal of free trade you talk of theoretical probability but an impractical one. What harms the financial status of trade and commerce in a country is a changing tariff. Tariff is down pretty low today, about as low as it can be pushed, and it is best to leave it alone. On a good many articles it is very low. Changing tariffs between countries from year to year is bad. It does a lot of harm. World free trade is a subject for discussion, but not for practice.

MONTAGUE PROWSE, Boston banker—I favor the abolition of high tariff, also the reduction of European war debts, as these would tend, in the long run, to aid Europe in re-establishing herself and to encourage foreign trade. High tariff tends to restrict American export trade, which would hurt us here. Most assuredly tariff abolition would establish friendly relations between America and Europe and bring about greater European commerce.

GEORGE R. FARNUM, Assistant U. S. District Attorney, recently returned from Europe—My attention has been called to the announcement that financiers are agitating tariff appeal for the purpose of rehabilitating European industries. I should be loathe to believe that, without something more than this news dispatch, Mr. Morgan or any other prominent American business man, has subscribed to any such sentiment.

On the other hand I am ready to be persuaded that European manufacturers would like unhampered privilege of dumping their products on American soil and swamping American markets. It is very apparent to everybody that there never has been a time when protective tariff is more essential to the protection of American industries. The whole prosperity of this State depends on the conditions of its industries.

With the currency of France, Italy and other European countries greatly depreciating and with the cheap labor available on the continent, goods can be produced in Europe, brought to America and offered here for far less than they can be produced in America.

OTIS EMERSON DUDLEY, president, Page & Shaw, Inc., and a bank director—Removal of tariff barriers, though unsettling and spotty in its immediate effects, would, I believe, in the long run, greatly stimulate business, enormously increase the production and distribution of products and ameliorate age-old racial differences. Action on one side of these artificial barriers necessarily is matched by reaction on the other side. At least we should press to get rid of these tariff walls as fast as possible.

JAMES JACKSON, director State Street Trust Co., etc., former candidate for Republican nomination for governor, "I am distinctly against the attitude of the bankers as expressed through the press in favor of world free trade and the lowering of the tariff. It would lower the wage scale of this country fifty per cent and lower the whole standard of living of the people of this country.

I am not for the lowering of the tariff. It would be impractical. World free trade is an ideal and a theory. The competition of manufacturers abroad would lower European wage scales. American manufacturers would have to reach their scale. We would be outmanufactured and our markets swamped. It is a question of the standard of living. I am decidedly against lowering tariff.

JOHN J. CORRIGAN, Treasurer, Simmons Savings Bank, Boston—I was reading about the tariff question in the paper and I am absolutely in favor of tariff reform. I think something ought to be done to lower it. I believe that the establishment of foreign trade with Europe would better conditions in this country and bring about a lucrative commerce abroad.

tioned relief men at strategic points to render aid.

The doors of the jail were thrown open to prisoners who were heads of families to protect their homes in the event the hurricane strikes here. The men were released on their honor to return after the emergency had passed.

Shortly before noon a driving rain swept across the bay and over the city. Many homes have been reported only slightly since the recent devastating hurricane and fears were expressed generally that a prolonged hard rain would cause much damage here.

More than 150 homes were demolished in the Gibora and Jesus Del Monte residential sections of Havana today by a hurricane, according to the Cuban consulate here.

A steadily increasing wind and a falling barometer were registered at Key West, the Miami Daily News was advised by telephone. The wind was reported at 35 miles an hour. The barometer had fallen to 29.81.

All communication with Havana via Key West was lost by the Western Union Telegraph.

An intermittent rain that started here last night and continued today, coupled with a moderate wind, increased apprehension that the hurricane would strike Miami.

All telephone and telegraph communication has been interrupted.

The Gulf in being lashed into a fury and small craft in Havana Harbor have suffered severely. Waves are washing over the sea wall on the Malecon, seaside promenade.

At 9:30 the hurricane had a velocity of 110 miles an hour.

All of Lower Havana, the old Spanish quarters, where there are many business houses, is flooded by waters that have been driven over the sea wall.

The hurricane struck Havana at 6 o'clock this morning and the wind increased in velocity until at 10:30 a. m. it was 100 miles an hour. The direction of the storm was northeast.

At the height of the blow there were alternate periods of darkness and extreme lightness of a brilliancy approaching sunlight.

Roofs were torn from flimsily built houses, billboards were blown over and windows smashed. The streets this afternoon were littered with wreckage.

Bread Lines for U.S. in Free Trade, Warns Curley

James M. Curley, president Hibernian Savings Bank, and former mayor of Boston said today:

I am absolutely in favor of giving an opportunity, not only for a livelihood but for a little more to the American working men and women. The American markets today are flooded with foreign made goods which seriously threaten the continued employment of American workers.

The proposition for world free trade, as presented through the press, would mean bread lines in America. I am absolutely and unqualifiedly against world free trade.

guard against a spread of the malady.

In view of the death of the Brooklyn sophomore and the fact he had been ill awo weeks, significance was seen by some in the act of President Coolidge assigning a special secret service man, Colonel Edward W. Starling to chaperon John at the college.

Hunter, however, is believed to have contracted the disease, while spending a few days in Atlantic City during the latter part of September. He showed symptoms of the malady when he returned.

But it was not until a week after Hunter came back from Atlantic City that he went to the college infirmary where his death occurred. While it was feared that the malady might have spread before Hunter went to the infirmary, no other cases, so far as it could be learned, have been reported.

HUNT CHICAGO GANGSTER HERE

The local police have long known that there has been a booting feud between Boston and New York gangsters, but the introduction of the Chicago element is an innovation.

The tip which led to the search for Genna came from Chicago. After John Genna's home was bombed a little less than a year ago, and before his brothers were killed, the bombers sent him a threatening letter to the effect that "they would get him yet."

Two of the Gennas took the warning and hurried away to Europe. The Chicago police believed that Johnny Genna had gone with these two, for he disappeared from Chicago. The three brothers who stayed in Chicago were killed.

Only within a day or two the Chicago police heard that Johnny Genna had not gone to Italy with his two brothers, but was living in the North End of Boston. They wired this information on to Boston, and the hunt for Genna is on.

The connections between the Chicago and Boston gangs is not at all unfavorable, in the opinion of the Boston man-hunters. "Scar Face Al" Scapone, one of the present gang leaders in Chicago, was brought on to that city from New York to take part in the gang warfare for bootleg supremacy. He had many connections with New York gangsters, who in turn were at war with Boston gangs.

the Western part of the State. The executive council was not in session.

Plainly downhearted at the turn of events, the group of seven Democrats and one Republican, wentback home, having practically decided to abandon further efforts in this direction and enter the "sticker" free-for-all. The visit to the State house was made after a meeting in the American House.

The "sticker" contest was made necessary by a ruling of the full bench of the Supreme Court, which set aside a reapportionment made by commissioners and ordered the county restricted.

This actionvoided thee andidacies of primary victors running for the House, so that their only course of action left, is to run on stickers. This ban, however, will permit any voter to nominate any candidate he chooses by writing in the name and address.

The delegation to the State House questioned Secretary of state Frederic C. Cooke regarding the ban on party emblems on stickers. Cook informed th emdidates that the law expressly forbids the use of party designations when stickers are used.

The Democrats are preparing to go to the Supreme Court.

Their counsel, Harold Williams, Jr., of Peckham and at the meeting today that the whole sticker election might be overturned

FEAR U. S. SHIP SUNK IN GALE

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Belief that the American steamer Hawaiia, a Shipping Board vessel, had gone down at sea, has been expressed here following news that the steamer, due at Buenos Aires twenty-five days ago, had not been heard from.

The vessel sailed from Norfolk September 1 with a cargo of general merchandise valued at $1,000,000.

The Hakleakia, which had thirty six men on board in addition to her captain, John Pratt, is believed to have been caught in one of the hurricanes which swept the South American coast several weeks ago. The steamer is a vessel of 5,587 and 3,222 net tons.

GREENE TRIAL IS PUT OFF

Trial of Dr. Thomas E. Walsh, his wife, Marion, and three other defendants, on charges in connection with the death and dismembering of Edith Louise Greene, "paper box victim," was put over today until October 27.

When the case was called today before Judge Fosdick in Suffolk Superior Court, John P. Feeney, counsel for Dr. and Mrs. Walsh, asked for the continuance.

The lawyer stated that Mrs. Walsh's mother's death and burial last week, together with a strained ankle, suffered by the former physician's wife, make the request imperative.

Judge Fosdick granted the request and set next Wednesday as the trial date. None of the defendants were in court. In addition to Dr. and Mrs. Walsh, they include James Vincent Ford of South Boston, alleged fiance of Edith Greene, State ward; his brother, William J. Ford of South Boston, and a friend, Thomas Tierney, also of South Boston.

UNCLAD DANCER FEATURED KLAN CHIEF'S PARTY

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 20.—Following is a continuation of an expose of the Ku Klux Klan's political control of Indiana by Court Asher, former prominent Klan chieftain.

By COURT ASHER.

Arthur Robinson, now United States Senator from Indiana, was D. C. Stephenson's personal attorney, as was Daniel L. Bock, former prosecutor of Eward County, in Clark.

Fred Butler, Stephenson's private secretary, was a 25-year-old grad uate of Kokomo County Richmond, Ind. Foster Strader, 25, was "Steve's" record clerk.

Earl Kiffer, Stephenson's first store owner from Evansville, and Carl Gunter once ran a restaurant in the same city, were Stephenson's body guards. He needed them.

Then there were Howard Bennett, a former lieutenant of police from Columbus, O., and Mrs. Bennett was the guest at "Steve's" home in Irvington; Mrs. Bennett was the housekeeper.

Carl Lose was the bookkeeper. Margaret Reynolds and Maxine Elliott of Indianapolis were "Steve's" stenographers. Ernest ("Shorty") Detrixe of Toledo, O., was his chauffeur.

These comprised Stephenson's personal organization.

COUNTED PENNIES.

Stephenson was a fiend for detail especially when it came to expenses. Nothing escaped "Steve's" eye.

He spun thousands of dollars upon prodigal entertainments, but he insisted that every penny be accounted for.

Not that "Steve" was miserly or "tight" with his cash. Indeed, Stephenson spent money upon occasion with the wild abandon of a drunken sailor.

I remember one episode in particular—a birthday party. All of the elect were there, and that doesn't mean only Klan officials and big politicians, but bankers, social leaders, prominent business and professional men, millionaire manufacturers and so on.

There was enough liquor on hand to float a battleship—wines, liquors, cordials and everything else imaginable, all from "Steve's" own cellar. Champagne was sullied about like water. We had the finest orchestras—there were two of them, so that there might be no pause in the music—available.

Stephenson laid himself out proper that night.

ANYTHING WENT.

"Anything goes," he shouted. Expansive automobiles were parked at the curb for blocks surrounding Stephenson's residence. Fully two-third of the notables of Indiana passed in and out of the doors of the mansion.

Along toward midnight the revel reached its height. Servants were kept busy caring for guests who "passed out," some permanently, some only temporarily. The place was a mad house.

Then came five husky footmen bearing an enormous birthday cake upon a huge silver platter.

Someone handed him a big silver knife. Waving it about his head he advanced upon the cake. Once, twice, thrice the knife descended. And then there was pandemonium.

GIRL REVEALED.

The big birthday cake trembled. It gave. Its sides fell away, opening like the petals of some wierd rose, and from out of its center there stepped—a young woman.

This young woman who played the role of Aphrodite at "Steve's" party were not even so much as a bracelet nor a ring upon her finger. Nor did she sit motionless. Not she.

One flying leap, and she cleared the wreckage of cake, landing light ly on her bare feet in the center of the floor. The double orchestra crashed into one of the latest dance pieces. Cheered, urged and applauded by some of the best known men and women of Indiana society she danced—danced—danced until she literally was exhausted and had to be carried from the room by gentlemen present who fought for the privilege.

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from stomach and bowels

Give "California Fig Syrup" at once if billious or constipated

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

MOTHER DIDN'T LIKE 'PEACHES' MARRIAGE

By "PEACHES" BROWNING.

New York, Oct. 20.—Mr. Browning in his statements to the newspapers has said some very unkind things about my mother. He said he would take me back but mother could never cross his threshold again. Of course I shall never go back either with or without my mother, but I wonder why Mr. Browning objects so strongly to her.

I've read and heard mother-in-law jokes and I've laughed at them as hard as anybody but in real life, I'm glad I had my mother to advise me in those trying times and she never was responsible for any discord between us.

Mr. Browning seemed to take a dislike to mother soon after we were married. Until that time nothing was too good for her but soon he turned against her and to this day you can see he has it in for her.

Why? What was he afraid she would find out? Why did he want to be alone with no one around? Was it just a case of three are a crowd and nothing more than that?

BENEFIT OF DOUBT.

Well, knowing what I do of Mr. Browning, I'm inclined to believe there was more behind this desire of his to get rid of my mother but I want to give him the benefit of the doubt. Perhaps I'm wrong.

It is not true that mother wanted him to keep on buying me pretty clothes so that she could wear them. She doesn't believe in wearing other person's garments. Besides our sizes are entirely different and she can't wear my clothes.

If she did urge him to spend money on me for clothes and things it was only because she wanted to see me well taken care of. All mothers are like that, aren't they? Mine is no different from the rest.

She was mighty nice to Mr. Browning, mending his clothes, his shirts and taking care of his ties and socks, almost as if she was his mother. Although to speak of mother that way is silly. Why, she's young enough to be his daughter.

As a matter of fact, now that we're on the subject, mother wasn't enthusiastic about having me marry Mr. Browning in the first place.

"Why, Babe," she said, "he's old enough to be your grandfather think it over carefully. You are a beautiful young."

A COSTLY MISTAKE.

But I wouldn't listen to her. I really thought I loved him and that he loved me. Well, it didn't take me long to find out my mistake—and it's been a costly mistake, too. May be its because Mr. Browning knows that mother wasn't over keen about our marrying that he harbors this grudge against her. Still, that isn't the real reason. I think he had some fixed purpose when he tried to separate mother and me.

HURT HER MOTHER.

Of course it hurt mother when Mr. Browning appeared so indifferent to my acid burns, just as it hurt me.

Mother sniffed when he said my scars didn't mar my beauty for him. She knew he wasn't thinking of my beauty or anything like that. He was thinking that doctors and medicine costs money.

Mr. Browning can say all he wants to about my mother, but she's the dearest, loveliest most darling mother in the world and there isn't any man living good enough to make me ever turn from her.

DEMOCRATS IN DRIVE THROUGH MILL CITIES

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Continuing their drive for support in Essex and Middlesex Counties where mill operatives are reported dissatisfied with Republican "prosperity," Democratic candidates on the State ticket will speak at the big rallies in Lawrence and Lowell this evening.

David I. Walsh, Democratic nominee for United States Senate, and William A. Gaston, the party's candidate for Governor, are scheduled to make the principal addresses. The Lawrence meeting will be held in the Winter Garden. James A. Donovan will preside. Mayor Walter T. Rochford of Lawrence will be among the speakers. Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston will reach stay-at-homes by a radio speech.

Memorial Auditorium will be the scene of the Lowell meeting, which will be opened by Mayor John J. Donovan, who will present James C. Riley as presiding officer. It is expected that ex-Senator Walsh, who has been received with great enthusiasm at rallies in that part of the State, will express himself on the World Court and attack Senator Butler for his silence upon the use of slush funds in Pennsylania and Illinois.

Candidate Gaston will spend part of the evening as the guest of the Swedish American Club in Boston. He will also address gatherings representing German societies, who are reported to be in sympathy with his views regarding the modification of the Volstead Act.

Accompanied by Chairman Charles H. Medline of the Democratic State Committee, Mr. Gaston visited Lynn, Salem, Beverly, Hamilton, Wenham, Essex, Ipswich, Rowley Newbury and West Newbury. Encouraging reports were received from party workers.

Walsh took Senator Butler to task for his refusal to declare himself for the industries of Massachusetts as against the wool growers of the West "whose contributions to national campaigns were repaid with this tariff schedule."

"The wool schedule was put into the Fordney-McCumber Act for the wool-growing interests and its operation assesses a tax of about 36 per cent. upon high grade wools that are made into the expensive clothing of the wealthy, and 100 per cent. upon the lower grades of wool which are used in the garments worn by the average citizen.

"The result has been that mills have been closed, wages have been cut and commission houses have been put out of business.

BUTLER FLAYS WALSH VOTES

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY.

Fitchburg, Oct. 20.—That David I. Walsh, Democratic candidate for United States Senate will carry Fitchburg, his home city, was considered probable by local Republican leaders attending G. O. P. rallies in this city and Leominster.

Senator Butler characterized the charge that an attempt will be made to buy the election in Massachusetts as "meaningless."

"I don't expect to buy the election, wouldn't if I could, and don't expect to have anybody buy it for me," he declared emphatically.

Taking up economic issues, he asserted that he was sure that the mantle of prosperity has not fallen on every industry or every individual.

He declared he had no criticism to make against Walsh personally, but has and will continue to criticise his record in office, "the votes he cast against the best interests of the people of the state and the partisan affiliations in Washington which make him subservient to the dominant southern wing of his party.

The statement issued by a group of New York bankers suggesting a low tariff or free trade to replace the present protective tariff as was shown to Senator William M. Butler, who, after glancing through it, said:

"The statement has been called to my attention but I have not had time to read it carefully or analyze it. I will say, however, that I believe in the American policy of a protective tariff. On it America and in Massachusetts the employment and prosperity of our workingmen depends."

Governor Fuller declared it was not surprising that Colonel Gaston his Democratic opponent, failing to find flaws in the record of the present State administration, had turned to the liquor issue, one with which a Governor has nothing to do.

SEES STATE PROSPEROUS.

"Prohibition will be settled in Congress, and not here in Massachusetts," Fuller asserted.

With the handicap of one million and a half dollar on the wrong side of the ledger when he took office, the Governor said, the State tax was kept at $12,000,000. "The business of the state carried on and today we have more money in the treasury than has been there in many a day."

The Governor added that he had stood firmly for promotion of those in the service possessed of necessary qualifications, for closer supervision of night clubs, the repeal of unnecessary laws and a commission to study the liberalization of the workmen's compensation laws.

Fears for Safety

Alleging that she suffered personal injuries, and that she fears for her safety, Mrs. Helen E. Riley of Arlington has filed an action for separate support in Middlesex Probate Court against Robert Riley.

"Switch to OLD GOLDS . . . and get all the sweet without any bitter; all the pleasure without any penalty.

"They're smoothest—that's why!"

Some men have the mistaken notion that a real he man's cigarette must be harsh and coarse. That's "all wet." A fine full bodied cigarette, like a fine full bodied Havana, is smooth and mellow. OLD GOLDS are mellowed by a new method that takes out all the bite and leaves in all the "kick." That's why you can smoke them without "throat tickle" why you can smoke and enjoy them morning, noon and night—without regret or after-effect.

JULIUS MATHEWS Representative of 48 New England newspapers

THE P. Lorillard Company plan to publish the above advertisement for OLD GOLD Cigarettes in a list of important newspapers.

In order to secure the most effective headline, they are inviting the men and women of New England to read the text of the advertisement carefully, study the picture and then submit their headline suggestions—each headline suggestion to start with the word "FRIEND" and to contain not over ten words all told.

Perhaps, one of the men in the picture is telling his friend how to get rid of his "tickling throat." He might be saying "FRIEND, DON'T KEEP THAT THROAT TICKLE; SWITCH TO OLD GOLDS!" Or he may be saying something entirely different pertaining to the excellence of OLD GOLD Cigarettes. You can write your own ticket!

52 prizes totalling $2,000 will be awarded for the 52 headline suggestions which most cleverly get over the point of this advertisement—in the opinion of the judges.

CONTEST RULES

(1) Contest opens October 18th and closes November 1st. All replies must be mailed to reach the Lorillard Company by or before midnight of November 1st. Winners will be announced the week of November 15th.

(2) Anyone, or either sex, may compete, excepting employees of the P. Lorillard Company, or their affiliated companies.

(3) Read the text of the advertisement carefully. Study the picture. Then submit the most appropriate headline, starting with the word "FRIEND" and using not more ten words all told. The shorter the headline, the better, if it gets over the point.

(4) Originality, clearness, brevity, neatness and legibility will count.

(5) Send your suggestion on the coupon in this advertisement, or a sheet of paper, writing on one side of sheet only. Sign your full name and address. You may submit as many suggestions as you like, but each must be on a separate sheet of paper or a separate coupon. Print your name and address very plainly.

(6) In the event that several persons submit the same winning headline, each will receive the full amount named for the above conditions, the rule for that headline will be applied strictly in all cases.

(7) The P. Lorillard Company will have the right to use as it pleases any or all headlines submitted, whether they secure a prize or not.

BROKEN GLASS PATROL SAVES MANY TIRES

CLUB HAS LARGEST ROSTER IN WORLD

The "Broken Glass Patrol" of the Automobile Club of Southern California removed more than 5,000 pounds of broken glass from pavements in and around Los Angeles during the first month of operation. The club operates a fleet of 15 Dodge Brothers motor cars in its highway patrol.

SAFETY STUTZ ORDER RUSHED

A new Safety Stutz, ordered October 4, from London for the Olympia Automobile Salon in that city, was manufactured in the Stutz plant and rushed to New York in time to catch the Berengaria, sailing for England October 13.

The rush order was called when one of the show models was claimed by the Earl of Woodrington for immediate delivery. Warwick Wright, distributor of the Safety Stutz in England, called for a new car. Since right-hand drive cars are required in England, it was necessary to make the car a special production order but the car was completed and driven to New York.

A good used car is a friend in need and a friend indeed. See Autos for Sale in the Classified Ads. Classification 140.

SILENCED DRIVE IN OAKLAND SIX

The rubber-silenced chassis developed in Greater Oakland six, is the product of new engineering applications of rubber, according to Frank Brown, general manager of the Oakland Motor Company of New England.

"Not only does the new Oakland chassis ride on balloon tires," said Mr. Brown, "but the engine rides on rubber insulated supports and drives through a rubber-silenced drive unit back of the transmission, thus obtaining a quietness which is claimed to be unmatched. The results achieved in the Greater Oakland Six were brought about by insulating the three major vibrations which effect body comfort."

8 NEW RECORDS IN NASH SALES

Eight new records were created by the C. P. Rockwell Company, New England distributors for Nash Motors, up to October 1.

Letters citing the records and figures have been addressed to all dealers by the Rockwell Company.

C. P. Rockwell cited the achievements of his company as follows:

"No previous September in the history of the company equalled last month in deliveries. Figures were 60 per cent. more than in 1925. For nine months ending September 30, deliveries were 20 per cent. more than during all of 1925. Retail sales in Greater Boston—with its neighborhood dealers—jumped 94 per cent. during September over the same month a year ago.

"Compared to the 12 months of 1925 there have been delivered this year in nine months 61½ per cent. more cars. At the Commonwealth avenue salesrooms retail sales in September more than doubled that month in 1925. From January 1 to October 1, retail sales at this store were 18 per cent. greater than during all of 1925.

the world but to look young, which you can't do.

MR. WILL ROGERS, who also knows something about advertising, welcomes the Rumanian Queen and praises her for running Peaches and Aimee McPherson back among the want ads."

The Queen will go her way, however, and Aimee and Peaches—the ones we know, or some others—will come back to the front page.

They are our natural and permanent intellectual diet.

MACKENZIE KING, Canadian Premier, says truly that all talk of Canadian annexation by the United States is foolish. It is as foolish as to talk about Canada annexing this country. But Canada and the United States, ruling and owning these northern lands, should be closely united in business, as well as close friends.

Americans would welcome a working arrangement by which the free trade between our forty-eight States could be extended to include Canada. That would give Canada the advantage of quantity production in the United States, which she cannot get for herself for a long time to come.

FIRST OF ALL would come uniformity in tariff. There is no difficulty that could not be arranged to the advantage of both countries.

In this country there is no more desire to own Canada than there is in Canada to own the United States. It is an excellent thing for us to have so able a pace-maker on the North.

A NUMBER of American financiers, including J. Pierpont Morgan, sign an international manifesto demanding that tariff and other trade barriers be pulled down and free trade established. The manifesto refers, let us hope, to Europe only.

ANYBODY WHO imagines that "world-wide prosperity" is to be built up by putting American manufacturers and workers on a par with labor and industry in Europe, Asia or Africa, doesn't know the United States. Ask President Coolidge. He knows.

ON OCTOBER 27 the Nation will celebrate Navy Day. What has it actually got to celebrate in the way of a modern navy? The navy on the water is no longer important. Only boats under water and flying boats count. There is no use talking about celebrating Navy Day in this country until we have an AIR navy worth celebrating.

WE HAVE good sailors, good fliers, a few of them, splendid marksmen, any number of brave men willing to do any kind of work. But our navy, if real modern war came, would be about as useful as the Russian regiments whose ammunition didn't fit their guns.

Nothing but flying machines fit modern warfare—whether naval or land warfare.

PROUD AMERICANS, good women especially, are grieved by statements made in modern histories of George Washington. Men in each generation live as their generation lives.

Washington was no exception. Living in slavery days, he had slaves—their quarters on his Mount Vernon plantation are visible. Living in an age when everybody drank temperately, and manufactured some of his alcoholic drinks, wisely, that he might know what was in them.

HIS ANCESTORS, living ten thousand years before Washington, probably practised cannibalism occasionally. Had he lived then he would have done as they did. Washington did not quite fulfill the ideals of the good 1926 Y. W. C. A., but the ladies should rejoice that he established a Nation in which the Y. W. C. A. could become a useful reality.

SEEN AT 'MUTUAL' EMPLOYES DINNER

MUTUAL DINES EMPLOYES

Compulsory automobile liability insurance expels insurance companies to expand their forces, thereby providing employment for hundreds, Ray A. Ilg, vice-president of the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, declared at the annual dinner and dance of the company's officers and employes at the Park Square Building.

"This is one aspect of the automobile insurance law to which little attention has been paid," he said. "It is, however, an important one because the task of insuring more than 700,000 automobiles was a large one for the liability insurance companies to cope with. As the first of the year approaches with its inevitable last minute rush, there will doubtless arise the necessity of employing hundreds more clerks."

Ilg presented S. Bruce Black, president of the Liability Mutual to the assembly during the dinner. He also installed in office as president of the association Thomas A. McGehearty, general claims manager of the company.

Other officers include Sadie C. Finnegan, vice president; Madeleen Somers, secretary; Anne Ramskill, treasurer.

Dancing took place until midnight.

OVERLAND SIX SALES JUMP

The Overland Six onstrined all previous sales records during September, Herbert G. Fitch, district manager of the Willy-Overland Company, announced today.

An increased volume of business in all parts of the country was noted. Mr. Fitch said, following the announcement of the drastic price cut on the Overland Six and the Whippet, during September.

With the drop in prices all models on the chassis were brought below the $1,000 price mark despite the fact that in general dimension, this product of Willys-Overland is the largest car in the light six classification, Mr. Fitch said.

Production plans in the Overland division of Willys-Overland contemplate the largest output ever achieved at this time of the year to take advantage of the pronounced increase in sales which followed the Whippet announcement in June and which has been maintained through the new price announcements.

With the first two months of the second half of this year, the largest in number of units delivered, in the history of the organization and with incomplete figures for September indicating that the pace established during the summer will be maintained, the close of 1926 is on the way to becoming the largest six months period Willys-Overland has ever experienced.

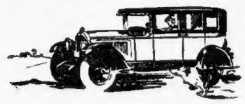
The greatest virtue any car can offer

"Its engine improves with use"



ELIMINATE engine-vibration—minimize friction—do away with carbon troubles and valve grinding—and you accomplish these two important things . . .

Your up-keep cost is cut in half—and you add scores of thousands of perfectly good miles to the usefulness of your car.

In the poppet-valve-engined car, it is the pounding of cams against push-rods, the contact of push-rods on rocker-arms, the recoil of valves under coiled springs that cause vibration. And, in time, vibration will wreck the finest engine ever built into a poppet-valve car.

In the sleeve-valve-engined Willys-Knight there is no pounding of metal upon metal. No elaborate mechanism of rocker-arms and springs . . . You never have carbon troubles. There are no valves to grind . . .

The Knight engine is simplicity itself. It consists of but two metal sleeves operating with a gliding motion. No vibration. No friction. Simply two single sleeves working smoothly, silently, up and down, one within the other, in a constant film of oil—and that is all!

Willys-Knight Great Six Touring $1750; Roadster $1850; 4-passenger Coupe $2195; 5-passenger Sedan $2295. Unseen Sources of Long Life

The basic sources of automobile value are not always apparent to the eye.

A motor car, like a house, may LOOK a great deal more substantial than it really is.

Because of this difficulty, more and more thousands are turning to Dodge Brothers product for insurance against disappointment.

The years have proved, and each year proves anew, that Dodge Brothers are as deeply concerned with the UNSEEN goodness of their motor car as with the seen.

The mileage it will deliver, the safety it will provide, the expense and trouble it will save the owner over a period of years, are quite as important to Dodge Brothers as the more obvious details of equipment and style.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Mrs. H. Hooper Lawrence Gives Debutante Luncheon to Margaret Wentworth

TODAY'S AFFAIR OF UTMOST IMPORTANCE to the debutante set was Mrs. H. Hooper Lawrence's luncheon for Miss Margaret Wentworth at the Lawrence town house in Beacon street. The affair had, in fact, two hostesses, Miss Caroline Lawrence of last year's set joining with her mother in the hospitality.

AND OF HONORED GUESTS there was a duo, Mrs Stratford Wentworth sharing the festivity with her daughter as guests-in-chief. And even such a spacious residence as that of the Lawrences was taxed to capacity by the round hundred of guests bidden.

PRINCIPALLY of the just-coming-out set, the Junior League probationary list furnished a goodly quota of the guests, and there was a sprinkling of matrons to distinguish the affair. Miss Wentworth came out formally just a short time ago at a dance given by her parents at the Milton Club.

WITH VAST ENTHUSIASM Miss Nancy Wentworth, the year-or-two-out daughter of the family, is going in for a career in the marts of trade, repeating her initial experience that way of last Winter, when business and pleasure dovetailed in the pleasantest way.

FOR THE LUCRETIA GODDARD debut at the Opera House, Mrs. Wentworth and Miss Nancy Wentworth joined the enthusiastic throng acclaiming this young artiste. Mrs. Wentworth's brocade and fur wrap, and Miss Wentworth's velvet with fox lent bright touches to their box in the horseshoe.

A RADIANT YOUNG MATRON, gorgeously frocked, Mrs. Alexander Steinert, Jr., was the observed of all observers at Symphony Hall for a recent Symphony concert. A wrap of rich fur and brocade topped a Parisian creation that carried the fashionable glint of metal.

MRS. STEINERT (the former Miss Sylvia Curtis), with Mr. Steinert, is sailing soon for France. It was in la belle France that the Steinert-Curtis romance flowered, the wedding being celebrated at the Villa Sylvia in Beaulieu-sur-Mer near the Alpes Maritimes, the Curtis home.

A MUSICAL GENIUS of first rank, Mr. Steinert pursued the Muse alternately here and abroad. Plaudits in great measure were his at the Symphony when that splendid orchestra played a Steinert composition in inimitable manner.

PROFESSIONAL DUTIES brings about the return to town of Miss Bertha Braggiotti, after a summer at the Braggiotti home in Italy and an interlude in Gotham where, by the way, Braggiotti admirers are numbered by the score. Miss Bertha returned only yesterday.

DURING HER New York stay she was a guest of Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, both at the town apartment and the country place at Westbury. Just now the paramount interest of this accomplished young woman is to see her sister, Miss Francesca, portray Salome in John the Baptist.

THIRD IN the Braggiotti trio-verate, Miss Gloria, of numerable talents, was hostess for a box party at the Opera House when the San Carlo people put on a double bill of song, Pagliacci and Cavalleria.

IN GAY FIESTA garb, Miss Eugenia Frothingham, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Langdon Frothingham, is to do an Italian Gypsy dance this evening at the Fete of St. Christopher. The fete and its celebration has progressed to the midweek's fancy dress ball, and Miss Frothingham is to do her specialty.

ITALY'S PRIMITIVE yellows, greens and scarlets in wide variety garland the handsome ballroom, lending thereto the gay fiesta spirit. It's a costume ball, and practically everyone gets into some expression of what Italy dons on fete days.

$100,000 N. H. FIRE LOSS

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 20.—Fire of undetermined origin which caused damages estimated at more than $100,000 broke out early today in the three-story block at Elm street and Dean avenue. The fire is believed to have started on a stairway between the first and second floors.

The Arthur E. Martin Clothing Company and H. J. Desrochers Jewelry Company are located on the ground floor and the International Chinese Restaurant on the two upper floors.

No authorized person was in the building at the time and the police are conducting an investigation to determine whether or not the blaze was of incendiary origin.

The fire was prevented from penetrating to the west end of the building, where are located the shoe store of McKelvie & Fellows and the George Noyes Cafeteria.

AIR PILOT FLIES 28,200 FEET WITHOUT OXYGEN

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Without artificial oxygen facilities, Corporal Sloan Brown of Langley Field attained an altitude of 28,200 feet, the approximate limit ceiling for pilots lacking oxygen, it was announced today.

The flight was to test a new supercharger on one of two planes recently sent to Langley from McCook Field.

DENY $400,000 SLUSH FUND

Chicago, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—An agreement among friends of Hugh S. Magill, independent Republican candidate for the Senate in Illinois, that his campaign fund should not exceed $25,000 was testified to today before the Senate committee investigating campaign funds committee by Julius Rosenwald, multi-millionaire merchant of Chicago.

Asked by Chairman Reed if there had been any suggestion among Magill's friends of raising a campaign fund of from $300,000 to $400,000, Rosenwald declared that this was absolutely untrue.

Magill, who followed Rosenwald on the stand, declared that the statement that a fund of from $300,000 to $400,000 was to be raised for his campaign was an "absolute falsehood."

"It is an absolute falsehood published by Mr. George H. Safford (superintendent of the Illinois Anti-Saloon League), after he knew that it was a falsehood," Magill declared.

Roy O. West, secretary of the Republican national committee, testified that the total collections of the national committee in the present campaign had not exceeded $350,000.

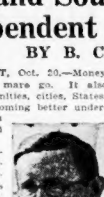
West and South Becoming Independent of Wall Street

BY B. C. FORBES

IN THE WEST, Oct. 20.—Money makes the mare go. It also develops communities, cities, States. This fact is becoming better understood all through the West and South.

One vital result is that ordinary folks, ordinary families are now supplying more and more of the capital required for local enterprises. Every time that a few millions of dollars, or even ten millions are needed, it is no longer necessary to go hat in hand to New York.



B. C. Forbes

Prosperous States and cities throughout the country are becoming independent of Wall street.

CHICAGO, Boston, Philadelphia, San Francisco, New Orleans, Seattle, Los Angeles, Atlanta and a host of other cities can now float new capital issues at home.

The estimate is that there are now 15,000,000 stockholders, in addition to the millions of bondholders, in this country. Customer ownership is swelling the total rapidly. So is employe ownership of stocks—one Western corporation, southern California Edison, has over 100,000 stockholders.

Herbert Fleischacker, leading San Francisco banker, tells me: "Formerly, when $5,000,000 to $15,000,000 of new capital was needed in California, we had to float an issue in the East. We now distribute such issues at home.

"I figure that 75 per cent. of all financial requirements are now met here. Up to ten years ago we didn't supply 25 per cent.

"Our local wealth has increased enormously.

DISCUSSING existing business conditions, he said:

"Business has been very good. Labor is well employed at very high wages. Building continues very active.

"We have the American, or open shop plan and we have been practically, though of course not wholly free from strikes. Shipping rates are unduly low owing to the world-wide oversupply of tonnage. The cattle business has not yet come back.

"But on the whole conditions are satisfactory."

SINCE the catastrophe of April 18, 1906, San Francisco has been reborn. It was accomplished enormously. Here are a few illuminating facts:

Building permits in 1905 were $20,000,000. Last year they exceeded $50,000,000.

Bank clearings have increased from $1,760,000,000 in 1908 to $9,480,000,000.

Postal receipts have jumped from $1,770,000 in 1906, to $8,133,000.

Population in 1906 was 342,782 and in 1920, 506,676. The local telephone company now estimates it at 840,000, the local water company at 812,000 and the Chamber of Commerce at 700,000.

Since the 1906 destruction building permits have totalled $700,000,000 for new construction.

Imports at San Francisco have increased from $37,500,000 in 1904 to $137,000,000 and exports from $32,500,000 to $183,000,000.

The city makes this impressive claim:

Water-borne commerce, including foreign trade, interstate trade through the canals, coastwise and Hawaiian Islands trade, and commerce on the inland rivers, reached a total of 28,619,982 tons, with a value of $1,770,029,919 for 1925. These figures make San Francisco second only to New York, and ahead of all other ports in both volume and value of cargoes."

A JOURNEY through the South lies ahead.

Buying "L" Stock

It is passing odd that both the Boston Elevated and the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway officials chose the same method of meeting the wage increase to employes. The Elevated raised the strips of five-cent tickets from 25 cents to 30 cents for five rides. Then, when the next wage raise came along, the Eastern Massachusetts reduced the number of rides on its dollar tickets from 16 to 15. Another wage advance was allowed, and the number of rides was cut from 15 to 14 for $1.

On neither road was there an advance of fare for the rider who bought a single trip at a time. Apparently there is no way to "get at" this rider. It is generally admitted he pays the limit. There remains, however, the taxpayer, who, whether he is a car rider or not, can still be reached, in the event of a further increase in expenses.

If "L" stockholders held shares in a mining corporation, for example, under present circumstances, it is more likely they would be worrying about assessments than receiving dividends.

If you do not own Elevated stock, however, there is no cause for you to be jealous. You, too, can become an Elevated stockholder at what appears to be a very moderate price, if public control is to continue. Note the "if" before buying and get an idea of what stockholders have to worry about.

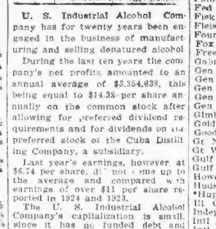
U.S. Indus. Alcohol



U. S. Industrial Alcohol Company has for twenty years been engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling denatured alcohol and its products.

During the last ten years the company's net profits amounted to an annual average of $3,564,628, this being equal to $14.35 per share annually on the common stock after allowing for preferred dividend requirements and for dividends on the preferred stock of the Cuba Distilling Company, a subsidiary.

Last year's earnings, however, at $6.74 per share, are more than up to the average and compared with earnings of over $11 per share reported in 1924 and 1923.

The U. S. Industrial Alcohol Company's capitalization is unusual since it has no funded debt and has only 60,000 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock outstanding ahead of the 240,000 shares of $100 par value common stock.

In consequence of this small capitalization, earnings in good years mount up very rapidly on a per share basis.

At the time of last report the company's net quick capital amounted to over seven million dollars, the ratio of current assets to current liabilities being 4 to 1.

On the preferred stock dividends have been paid regularly since 1917 and on the common shares they were payments from 1917 until 1924, since when there have been no payments.

EGYPT ACTS PROMPTLY TO MEET COTTON CRISIS

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 20, (A.P.)—To end the cotton crisis the Egyptian government today announced it was prepared to advance to the banks 4,000,000 Egyptian pounds or more, which will be loaned through banks throughout the country. The banks will arrange for storage of the cotton against which the loans are advanced.

The growers will pay a moderate rate of interest. They will then be able them to restore their cotton and at the same time get funds with which to meet their obligations. The cotton will be held for disposal under more favorable conditions.

SOME "CUSTOMERS' MEN" ARE CENSURED BY COX

New York Stock Exchange has taken officially cognizance of reports that "customers' men" in commission houses have been collecting commissions on sale of listed and unlisted securities for investments and has directed, through Secretary Cox, that such practices must cease.

New York Curb

New York, Oct. 20.—Industrial and utility stocks were mixed in the curb market today. Motors were lower with Du Pont at 196, down 1 point, and Rey at 17¼, down slightly. Warner Brothers dropped 1¾ points to 23, while White Sewing Machine declined fractionally on a new low of 15. United Gas Improvement sold up 2 points lower at 103. Oils were steady with Humble at 54¾, unchanged.

Cotton Is Steady

New York, Oct. 20.—The cotton market was steady today. Prices were from unchanged to 5 points lower. December sold at 12.70, down .05; January 12.77, down .02; and March 12.63, unchanged.

LEAD AND TIN SHORTAGE IS FORECAST

BY FRANK H. MELOON

Financial Editor

Boston Stock Exchange broker assures me there is a genuine likelihood we will have a shortage of lead and tin before many months have passed. He has information to the effect that all known deposits of these metals are being worked and that geologists have seen no signs of further deposits. On this ground, he is telling customers to buy shares in good metal companies that have adequate ground supplies of either of the two metals.

I hear considerable regret expressed by business men over the decision of Secretary James A. McKibben of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to quit his post. For nineteen years Secretary McKibben has made the Chamber "home" to a thousands of visitors and members. Mr. McKibben says: "I have worked very hard ever since I was a boy of ten years of age, and am now in my thirteenth." That would indeed be considered a hardship by most of the children of today.

One New England State is being told how she can "produce more of what she eats." A good many of them are by turning to the soil, produce more of what we eat. The real question would seem to be, however, how we can produce more of what we can produce most effectively. We wouldn't expect the cotton banker, the skilful doctor, the competent lawyer, the earnest clergyman, to become farmers or quit their professions earlier, merely to be able to produce more of what they eat. What says the Good Book? "Man does not live by bread alone?"

We spoke recently of "Tom" Lawson's belief that the number 13 was "lucky" for him. Superstition still has a hold on many people, for example, that of never walking under a ladder. Almost every morning on a street leading to Boston you can see a window cleaner at work on a ladder. By actual observation in five minutes the other day I saw no fewer than 12 or 15 carefully avoid passing under the ladder.

If those employed at the Charlestown State Prison have a grievance, nation, there must be a lot of thinking going on over the 600,000 pairs of Massachusetts auto number plates being turned out there. Before long these plates will be speeding over the country sections of the map, while those who turn them out will in the meantime remain locked behind bars that stand for the "law and order" which made a Governor of Massachusetts President of the United States.

E. P. Pearson, a director of the Tremont and Suffolk Mills of Lowell, is conducting liquidation of the company to stockholders, and is quoted as saying the salary of Treasurer Fred W. Shibe is $40,000 a year. Frequently we see graphs illustrating where the railroad dollar goes. No doubt a series of similar graphs on our New England mills would prove equally interesting, if the facts were obtainable. The point that might be made is that a good deal of $40,000 a year is spent more better than a poor one at $5,000.

I chanced to meet Major F. W. Hartford of Portsmouth, N. H., publisher of the Portsmouth Herald, at the Touraine. He was in Boston to attend a meeting of newspapermen. In discussing the growth of New England the Major was more than thusiastic over the prospects and no less a big gain indicated. "The men of no other section of the country can compete with the men trained in New England in the line of pioneers. Our men are not afraid of work and can be depended upon to produce more and at less cost when they set out to do things."

There are few men better informed about railroads, especially those in New England, than Editor Hartford. He was a member of the New England Railroad Conference appointed in August, 1912, to sit with other members appointed by the Governors of the New England States to study the railroad situation in New England. He comes from a family of railroad men, with four brothers connected with railroads, while all of his wife's people, including her sister and two brothers, have been or are connected with the New England lines.

How DUCO won the New York Market with the NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

DUPONT
E. I. DU PONT DE NEMOURS & COMPANY
New York Evening Journal
2 Columbus Circle, New York City
September 2, 1926
Gentlemen:
Duco for Handy Home Uses secured such uniform and intensive distribution in the New York Metropolitan Market and the repeat business has been so gratifying that we are glad to authorize another dominating campaign for this fall in the New York Evening Journal exclusively.
Because of the demand on the part of the buying public, we recently announced Duco Stains—Mahogany, Walnut, Light Oak, Dark Oak. In addition, we have made available six new vogueish shades of Duco that were selected by a group of interior decorators and women editors.
These new colors and stains are meeting with the same quick acceptance that were accorded Duco when it was first made available to be brushed on at home.
People are certainly more conscious of color than ever before, we see it on every side—in interior decorations, furniture and automobiles. That we recognize this important trend is shown in our own continued use of color pages in your publication.
We feel that the effect of these pages on the trade, as merchandised with your intelligent co-operation, has been a big factor in the continued success of the Duco campaign.
Very truly yours,
Director of Advertising
DUCO
DELFT BLUE

Three months' quota achieved in three weeks, by exclusive use of this great newspaper

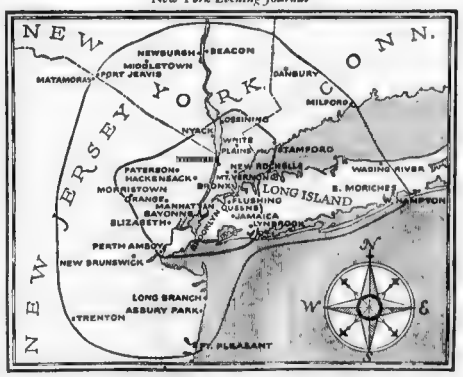
When the Du Pont Company brought out its wonderful new paint product—Duco—in cans for home use, they began in the right way, by selecting the right market. They could not afford to have any lost motion or wasted effort. Paint, particularly a new brand of paint, is hard to sell. It runs into money; the dealer has to carry a complete stock of colors and sizes. So they launched their campaign in the New York Market, with its 9,000,000 consumers—the richest trading area in the world.

Having selected the right market, Du Pont next choose the one best method of winning it. By availing themselves of the advertising columns of the New York Evening Journal, and the specialized knowledge of the Evening Journal Merchandising Department, the Du Pont Company reached at one stroke not only the buying public, but the extensive list of metropolitan dealers. By means of the New York Evening Journal, an unobstructed channel was at once established for the flow of Duco from the Du Pont factories into hundreds of thousands of New York homes.

This was not a haphazard selection, the fruit of chance or good luck. Du Pont knew that the Evening Journal had the greatest evening paper circulation in America; that by going every night into 700,000 homes, it reached 3,000,000 of the 9,000,000 consumers in the New York Market! And Du Pont knew that the Evening Journal Merchandising Department, with its background of 695 successful campaigns, was supremely well qualified to offer expert counsel and co-operation in winning this tremendous market.

The campaign opened with full-page advertisements, both in color and black-and-white, in the New York Evening Journal. At the same time, the field men of the Evening Journal started an intensive drive upon prospective dealers, pioneering, breaking down sales-resistance, and paving the way for the Du Pont salesmen, who followed in their footsteps.

25% of your sales can be made here, through the dominance of the New York Evening Journal



The results were phenomenal. After three weeks, more Duco had been sold than the Du Pont Company thought could be disposed of in three months! Many dealers' stocks were cleaned out again and again. In less than thirty days, this brand-new product was solidly established in the New York Market!

What the New York Evening Journal has done for Duco, it can do for you. It offers a broad, smooth path to the heart of a market which is small in area but immensely wealthy, highly organized, yet easy to cover—a market where merchandise can be turned into cash quickly—the greatest, richest market in the world!

WETS HAIL NORWAY'S VOTE

Liberty League Overjoyed by Defeat of Prohibition in Plebiscite

Bay State wets today waxed jubilant over the news from Oslo that Norway had overthrown prohibition by an overwhelming majority of 110,000 votes.

In this crushing defeat administered to the drys, the Constitutional Liberty League supporters saw the turn of the tide sweeping over the whole world in revolt against curtailment of privileges.

The Norwegian action was expected to have a mighty influence on the vote here. The law was tried out there for seven years in a modified form and failed. It was argued lending a weapon of strength to the fight against the Volstead act.

The vote was recorded in a plebiscite on the question of continuing prohibition under which the sale of liquor exceeding 21 percent was banned.

The will of the people was invoked on the question by the king in a speech read from the throne at the opening of the Storthing last January.

That body will now confirm the vote as soon as Premier Lykke in the case the bill abolishing prohibition.

Norway has had a modified form of prohibition for seven years. Starting with prohibition of liquors containing more than 14 percent alcohol, three years ago the percentage was raised to 21.

In spite of this alcoholic content it was found impossible to enforce the law. Premier Lykke said in public speeches, with smuggling becoming common.

Treat Will Take Over Bulldogs if McKirdy Forfeits Franchise

By BIRNEY P. LANCH.

ALTHOUGH Colonel Bob McKirdy, owner of the Boston franchise in the American Professional Football League has announced his determination to quit, there is still a slight ray of hope that the team will continue in the Hub until the close of the campaign.

M Kirdy left today for New York to hold a conference with Big Bill Edwards, president of the league and C. C. Pyle, who organized the circuit. Edwards and Pyle have promised to aid McKirdy financially if the latter will tell the writer that he positively would not allow [illegible] high [illegible] money. He said he [illegible] between $12,000 and $15,000.

Another angle to the situation also developed. Herb Treat, coach of the team, today declared that in case McKirdy finally did quit he would take over the franchise and [illegible]

"I am sure that pro football will succeed eventually in Boston," Treat said. "I have talked with President Edwards of the league and he virtually agreed to turn the franchise over to me.

"I BELIEVE the players will stick with me and pay for whatever is left after expenses have been paid. Most of them already have sacrificed some of their salaries in order to help me out in any way they can. The members of the team and myself realize that it is a big proposition, but there are still six games to be played and we are certain the team will draw in Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago where three of them are scheduled."

McKirdy said he was certain that Boston was not yet ready for pro football. He pointed to the slender crowds which attended both games played here as proof of this assertion.

"I simply cannot afford to keep a losing team in the league," he said with a wry smile on his face, "but I don't believe I'm out by losing to do that. However, I'll know all about that early tonight. If I do not believe that Edwards will turn the franchise over to Treat, I know nothing of the reported conference between Treat and Edwards. It is possible this may happen, but it seems very improbable."

GOODWIN AIMS FOR TITLE RING DUEL

By JACK CONWAY.

HONEYBOY FINNEGAN and Chick Suggs will battle for the world's featherweight championship in a Boston ring if Matchmaker Tom Gilmore of the Suffolk A. A. is successful in landing this popular pair.

Finnegan and Suggs are generally recognized as the world's leading featherweights.

Jack Conway

Henry Bass and Red Chapman are the only featherweights who threaten their positions.

Chapman was considered as the best of the Lightweights until he suffered defeat at the hands of Finnegan at Braves Field last month. Red contends his standing should not be lowered in view of the fact the weight for the match was above the featherweight limit.

The National Boxing Association has approved champions of all classes other than the featherweight group. It holds there is no recognized title holder in this boxing division.

A tussle between Finnegan and Suggs would be virtually a title affair in the event the weight for the match were 126 pounds. There is grave doubt in certain quarters as to whether Finnegan will agree to make 126 pounds for any opponent. Most of his best fights have been at 128 pounds.

Suggs is a legitimate 126 pounder. In fact, the New Bedford youth is now up to 129 pounds and still he grows. He has entered the ring as low as 115 pounds, but his fighting is now low for him.

AL MELLO, Lowell welterweight, writes from Jaffrey, N. H. that he is on the road each day getting ready for his coming contest with Jack Sharkey in this city at Mechanics Hall. He is planning to have a long boxing bout this month. Al will first dispose of one or two minor opponents before he opens fire on the big fight of his welterweight group. Bruins Prepare to Claw Bulldog

Providence, R. I., Oct. 20.—A scrappe Brown bear is having his claws sharpened in preparation for the coming battle with the Yale bulldog in Yale bowl Saturday afternoon. Coach Tiny McLaughry of the Brown squad drove his men through a long practice session which included both defensive and offensive scrimmages at Andrews Field.

A defensive scrimmage against the scrub team during which Coach McLaughry, Ed McMillan, and Bill Ormsbee stood over the first team and watched with eagle eyes for mistakes, occupied a large part of the time. The varsity eleven was given a second strenuous drive with the second team after the conclusion of the fray with the pollywogs.

Greatest Golf Shot That I Ever Saw

As Told to Jack Kofoed
By GARDINER WHITE
Former Metropolitan Champion

A GREAT shot made in a practice round or in a friendly match cannot compare with one of the same kind made under the mental strain of championship competition. That is why I class a shot made by Jerome Travers in the national amateur tournament of 1913 as the best I have ever seen, or the best I ever expect to see.

It was not a question of holding out a shot. There is a large element of luck in that. But such a shot as he made under the stress he was subjected to at the moment was proof of his wonderful competitive spirit and mastery of his clubs.

Travers was playing Chick Evans. Chick, as every one knows, is a brilliant golfer—one of the greatest ever developed in the United States. At that time he had the additional strength and spirit that comes of youth and high ambition.

The tournament that year was played at the Garden City Golf Club, a course laid out by Walter Travis, who showed a fiendish ingenuity in distributing traps about the landscape. The course is a difficult one for even the best of players.

Evans was in great form. He had Jerry 3 down coming from the eleventh. His drive was fine, and right down the fairway. Travers hooked his ball slightly, and though his distance was a shade greater than Chick's, it left him with a poor lie in the rough.

The Chicago star shot his ball to the green, some fifteen feet from the pin, with a possible birdie and an almost certain par in store for him. Travers, it seemed, would be lucky

This is the second of a series of articles by the most famous golf players in America, which will appear daily in the Boston Evening American. Tomorrow Harry Hampton will tell of "the greatest golf shot he ever saw."

to get out just off the green. That would make him 4 down, and end the match almost to a certainty.

That didn't seem to disconcert Jerry in the least. He came out of the rough with a magnificent shot that stood as one of the greatest golfer that ever lived. His ball shot high from its shaggy resting place, and came down within four feet of the pin, swirling with a back spin that fairly dug into the green. The shot so disconcerted Evans, a man hard enough to shake at any time, that he missed the putt, and Travers simply sank his 3 for a 2 down instead of 4.

Travers then on the Upper Montclair links forged ahead and eventually Chick, going on to win the championship that year, defeated Travers by John G. Anderson. Yet, his entire victory that year hinged on one shot on the eleventh hole. Had he failed then he would have been eliminated, and some other man would have won the most coveted crown in golf.

PICKERS PROVE GOOD STICKERS IN CONTEST

There's one thing certain about football critics and pickers, they're durable and hardy. The more light leads that they stop with their chins in the way of upsets, the more enthusiasm they exhibit in their chosen avocation.

Last week's barrage of upsets will have no effect on them other than to inspire renewed effort. For last week is always last week, and the dawn of a new day brings the dawn of new hope for football tickets, a hope which will always lead a picker of scores to extreme ends.

Herb Treat's selections, upon which the fans of the vicinity are urged—unnecessarily, of course—to exercise their guessing machines comprises five good games, all of which look fairly easy, but none of which can be justly termed snaps. They are:

Dartmouth vs. Harvard, Yale vs. Brown, Princeton vs. Lehigh, B. U. vs. St. Louis.

The details of this contest are of course well known by now, but they are printed in full in the coupon on this page. Be sure and read them carefully and follow them to the letter if you wish your contribution to count. One contestant last week merely marked the winner with a cross, without attempting to pick any scores. Another failed to send in a 100-word letter, and although his choices were very good, they could not be counted.

This contest is not all chance by any means; it requires a certain knowledge of gridiron conditions. Those who pick a team not called an outside chance, show that they are not following the game as closely as they might.

Picking the scores of the five games given has indicated that they will not be easy. But it will be fun. And the reward will repay your best efforts.

Annapolis Md., Oct 20 (INS)—New York has drawn the Army-Navy football game for 1927, would the 1928 contest will be played in Philadelphia it was announced today. Athletic authorities here and in Philadelphia made the announcements.

The athletic authorities of the two services also announced they had reached a 10 year agreement for the games starting with the West Point's adoption of the one-year rule. It has become that cadets will not be eligible to participate in varsity athletics until after one year of academic work. Games during the 4 year period will be played at points along the Atlantic seaboard, convenient to both academies.

Service Teams Vote for Freshman Ban

Annapolis, Oct 20. Officials of the United States Naval and Military Academies have reached an agreement for the playing of the four annual football games following the game of this year with which the present agreement expires.

Under the contract, the games will be played in order on November 24, 26 and 29 and in some city of the eastern seaboard offering suitable grounds and accommodations and accessibility to the two schools.

The military academy has the first selection and has intimated that it will name New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, each with a stadium seating upward of 100,000, are also considered, particularly by the Navy.

It was agreed that first-year students would not be used on the teams thus removing a great source of bad feeling between the institutions.

While under the contract, Chicago or any other Western city could not be selected, a change could be made by agreement as it was this year.

GEORGE DIXON'S BELT IS SAVED AT FIRE

Memories of George Dixon, boxer of a generation ago, and his reign over the featherweights of the world, were awakened in Chelsea when the $2,500 diamond-studded belt, presented to Dixon in his heyday, was rescued during a fire in the hardware store of A. K. Mann & Co. 50 Broadway.

The belt, now the property of Red Chapman, Chelsea boxer, had been on display in the store.

BRAXTON MADE QUITE A REP AS RELIEF HURLER

Garland Braxton, traded to the Washington Senators by the Yankees with Nick Cullop, heavy hitting outfielder, and $4,000 for Butch Ruether, started only one game on the mound last season and lost that, but as a relief pitcher established quite a reputation. Cullop has been a minor league sensation on several occasions but has difficulty gauging curve pitching.

YANKS RELEASE SKIFF, SUB CATCHER, TO NEWARK CLUB

Bill Skiff, who worked almost a full schedule of 154 games last season warming up pitchers in the Yankee bullpen but who was wobbling out on the hill, has been released to the Newark club of the International League. He is expected back in the majors some time next season.

Winter Sports Going Over Fans Want Baseball Change Al Miller Hoard Threat

SOME fifty northern New England towns will go for Winter sport carnivals this season. This is a forest insanity that is having a succeedingly greater appeal as years roll on. The boys and girls hear so much about the lure of the great open spaces that they fall heavily.

Personally, this correspondent has always been able to get properly frozen by taking a ride on an L surface car, or waiting for the same. Cold feet are uncomfortable, be they in the slush of Boston or attached to a pair of snowshoes somewhere in the wilds.

Our idea of real Winter sport is a crackling fireplace with the right kind of a gang around and a few boys serving this and that at appropriate intervals. That, incident, lly, is the part of the carnivals that has the greatest appeal after a few touches of frostbite.

Nick Flatley

DORA DUMB thinks that the Winter sports all go to Florida.

REMINDS us that notices are at Land announcing the annual International Dog Sled Derby at Quebec on February 21, 23 and 23. This event, which attracts some 20 entries, consists of a 25-mile journey for each of the three days. And the winner gets money, fame and a slot at the movies.

It has become so popular that more than 1000 guests went up to Crateau Frontenac last year, and a full house is expected on the occasion. They have more snow in Quebec than there is sand in the Sahara, and nothing is ever called off because of the weather.

The practical modern athlete is taking the romance even out of the sports of the North. Last Winter, according to Sport Manager Ad— at Frontenac, a number of collegiate sprinters entered the snowshoe ha— ble rules.

The descendents of the voyageurs and old Hudson trappers had been running these events regularly. I was filling and all that. But the college boys, ones they caught the knack of jumping on the runners, quest, ran away with all the prizes.

HARVARD football is steaming up, and the Stadium will be packed for the Dartmouth game on Saturday. The Crimson should have a chance, but how one can fancy in football than anywhere else.

Two years ago an inferior Cambridge team could have beaten the Green, had not Death Decies used several wild native chances. Al Miller, the big sprinter, was clear twice that afternoon with the sole exception of Death. And Al was spilled so hard that he has never been the same since.

He may find his stuff in this one game. He has it in him, and it would be mere justice for the one boy to make fame for himself after three tough years. Miller, with his weight and speed, can't help being a real threat.

Tunney Took Lessons in How to Fight at Army Camp

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

This is the fourteenth chapter of Gene Tunney's own story—written by himself—of his life and fighting career, written exclusively for the [illegible]

By GENE TUNNEY

So far, I have made comparatively little money in the ring. It has been said that I have not been as good a business man as some aspirants to the heavyweight title. I do not agree with this [illegible] and each income has been relatively small. My plan was to advance myself [illegible]

Gene Tunney

[illegible] I was a champion.

I figured that the money [illegible] would follow as a natural consequence. I had proved my title. There were [illegible] hardships in training me, not the least of which was a feeling that I [illegible] I recall that without sound fighting weapons a man might as well [illegible]

My first [illegible] he was given to by Major Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, famous [illegible] Quantico, and was promoted into the ranks of the Marines. At Quantico I was drilled in the art of fighting [illegible] with bayonets, hand grenades and [illegible]

Major Biddle Gives Gene Boost

Major Biddle was an [illegible] He also was our [illegible] I could do [illegible] knowing that I was told how [illegible] and a natural boxer. He had [illegible] of the game [illegible] long associations as a trainer with Packey O'Brien and Jack Dillon. When I was preparing [illegible] for the Dempsey fight, I met Major Biddle for the first time since I left Quantico. It was when I was [illegible] for my Stroudsburg training camp that the major looked me up. He was as healthy and robust as ever, for he takes excellent care of himself at all times.

I recalled to the major how he had inspired the boys down at Quantico with his [illegible] of clean living and [illegible] exercise. He used to be up and about [illegible] before anyone else was stirring, and would put himself through strenuous exercises.

It was Major Biddle who first attempted to rouse in me that quality which my critics say I lack—"the killer instinct." In bayonet practice the major used to roar at us as we charged the sawdust dummies, shouting such things as:

"Stick 'em and grunt! Let me see you snarl. Grunt, I tell you! Stick 'em and twist the steel in 'em until they scream! They're NOT DUMMIES; they're ENEMIES! Give it to 'em!"

Meeting the major now, one feels that he is a singularly unwarlike gentleman, but at the time he was drilling us he was able to inspire himself with absolute ferociousness, a requisite of the business in hand I think Major Biddle could have been champion had he elected to follow the game professionally.

How Time Has Changed Boxing Game

When John L. Sullivan fought Paddy Ryan, the hot breath of the constable was on his back all the time. What a change since then! When I fought Dempsey the King Albert of Belgium was rooting for me, and Mayor James J. Walker gave me the freedom of my native city after I had won.

I am told that when Mysterious Billy Smith licked Connie Doyle that Connie went into Billy's dressing room following the fight and grabbed Billy's arm. Then he tried to break it across his knee. Contrast that act of spirit with the modern day formalities. The day of the Dempsey fight called on Jack and we had a visit which further cemented our friendship.

Boxing must be [illegible] to make it interesting for the public. The days of [illegible] boxing and shadow [illegible] given way to clean, scientific [illegible] encouragement [illegible] fair [illegible] boxers.

When George Bernard Shaw wrote [illegible] Profession," in which James J. Corbett starred [illegible] he was regarded as having idealized the prize fighter too much. But we are merely wearing ahead to the time when [illegible] would be recognized as a [illegible] national business.

Prize fighters [illegible] brought me friends in high places. Bankers, lawyers, society [illegible] and men of [illegible] walks and [illegible] of life have [illegible] me to associate with them and learn about the [illegible]

If I can [illegible] do [illegible] great thing for me would [illegible] prove [illegible] I tried to [illegible] every way to be an [illegible] citizen [illegible] a hero in [illegible]

Tomorrow Tunney tells the inside story of his defeat by Harry Greb in a sensational battle.

Throng of Students Cheer the Eagles as They Depart for St. Louis

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

ST. LOUIS-BOUND Boston College's varsity football team, numbering 26 gridders, led by Major Frank Cavanaugh, departed from the Hub this afternoon amid the cheers of the Maroon and Gold student body at Trinity Place Station. The University Heights representatives were given an ovation as they boarded the rattler for the West.

"The invasion will entitle the Eagles to more gridiron prestige and we will win," was Cav's message to football fandom. The warriors will arrive in the Mound City tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. This will allow them three hours in the Cardinal town on a sight-seeing excursion.

Friday morning a light signal drill will be held at Sportsmans Park, the home pasture of Hornsby & Hamiltons. The same bill of fare is on for the afternoon. The Eagle gridders will have plenty of time to kick the kinks out of their legs and acclimate themselves.

This battle is the fourth intersectional conflict in five years for the Boston ans. The score stands two victories for the West and one for the East. In 1922 Boston College was stopped by Detroit University 14 to 0. It had four years later by Syracuse. However, B. C. prides itself on the decisive whipping handed to Brown back in the rainy days of 1924, when Chuck Conley first broke into the limelight. It will be remembered that through the Eagles returned with a 21 to 7 win they were minus the services of "Chuck," whose leg was broken.

MYSTERY ELEVEN

St. Louis University has a mystery eleven. Some Western critics say it is capable of pulling the Eagles down, while others report that it couldn't beat its own freshmen team. How anyone can form an estimate of its strength is a puzzle. One thing is sure. It plays like an All-American outfit and whips Drury 41 to 0 on the following week end, but falls miserably before Marquette to the score of 28-0.

Two surprise selections were made when Coach Dunn attended the Boston College Holy Cross plebe game in Worcester last Saturday and as a result two freshmen, Frank McGowan and Young-Jack Heaphy, are adding their friends good bye. McGowan is an unknown. He came to the Heights from Hyde Park High, where he played on the school team. His touchdown and general play helped the Eagles to a tie with the Purple. He is a halfback.

ANOTHER HEAPHY.

The name of Heaphy has graced the Newton hall of fame before. The St. John's Prep lad is a cousin of the present B. C. High mentor. Like his All-American relative, he plays the pivot position.

The following make up the party: Captain Joe McKenney, McNamara, Welsh, Crowe, Shea, E. Kilroy, Kennedy, Condon and McGowan, Tackles: Dower, Lawrence Sullivan and Wogan, ends; Obenberger, Whitlock, Meeka and Durrant, tackles; Wojcewskai, O'Brien, Beach and Sheehan, guards; Clifton, Larkin and Heaney, centers. Coach Cavanaugh, Father Matthews, faculty director of athletics, Frank Reynolds, graduate manager of athletics; Mr. Jere John O. Drummond and Trainer Frank Jones.

Coach Arnold Horween in a desire to choose an experienced team to face Dartmouth, shifted Meadows to the second varsity in the first week out of the week. Don't High Hat Others If you wish to be popular; but, if you want to be stylish, you must adopt the high hat yourself. The higher the crown, the more chic the hat, whether it be of velvet, velour or lustrous antelope felt. Small brims vary in their trend—some turning pertly up and others shading the eyes, but this season the mode's crowning glory is vested in the height of the crown with a backward rake.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH

By Merlyn Swift

NASTASIA received an awful jolt when a charming young man jumped up in the crowded subway-train, bowed in courtly style, to the great wonder of the nearby passengers, and said: "A seat for your highness and forgive me that I did not see you sooner."

He spoke in Russian, so none could understand the blushes that flooded the girl's white cheek as she took the proffered place with a queenly nod of acknowledgment. Indeed, the title of highness fitted her well. Her eyes were large and black, her face exquisitely pale. The beautiful ermine-trimmed coat drew many envious glances toward her. He who had behaved so gallantly stood in front of her, his wide shoulders unyielding to the crowd that tostled him.

"Dmitri Festinov!" she asked, "is it not?" His worshipping eyes seemed to read the words as her lips formed them, for the noise in the crowded car was great, and the noise of a people happy that their work is done, that evening bringeth rest.

"Even so, Princess Nastasia, it is your servant, the son of your father's steward."

"I remember," the black eyes seemed to look through people through the car, through an eventful past. They saw Russia, the great estates of her father. They saw the peasants and among them a round-faced little boy of twelve . . . her own age. . . . Dmitri. Had ten years passed since then? And all those things that had made her childhood so fair . . . Yes, they had gone forever. She had almost forgotten much of that past. Dmitri's presence in a New York subway-train recalled it freshly to her.

The train stopped. Nastasia rose quickly from her dreaming and swept by him with a smile. Just as she had known he would the young man followed her, out on the platform, up the stairs to the street level. She stopped and gave him her hand. Somehow it seemed right that he should kiss it. She had often thought of Dmitri. He was handsomer as a man than he had been beautiful as a boy. His face was keen and very intelligent. His mustache small like a soldier's in the Royal Guard.

"You live in New York, Dmitri?" she asked kindly as they walked towards the avenue. "It is good to see a familiar face."

"Yes, highness. For five years I have lived here. I could no longer stay at home to see . . . ."

"I too saw, Dmitri . . . We had to flee, father and I. He is gone now—gone!"

"Then you are alone, highness . . . in a strange country. But you are wealthy, you have found happiness?" He looked at the beautiful coat. She was glad he had never seen it before. It was old. It had been put away and kept carefully. It had belonged to her royal mother.

In front of a stately house on the avenue she stopped and bade him good-by. "This is my country now, Dmitri. Here I am content. I am happy to have seen you."

Again the young Russian kissed her hand. His eyes were fervent with a look of devotion.

"I have a good position here, highness, managing a line of ships that trade with Russia. Yet gladly would I give all to become your guard, your attendant, my princess."

"You have not become American, Dmitri," she chided. "You think we are still in Russia. No one calls me highness in New York. They do not know I was ever a princess nor do they care."

"May I enquire for your highness' health?" asked Dmitri. "I never forget my place in relation to your family. My father served yours and I must serve their child."

She hesitated. "You may come Tuesday evening, Dmitri. It will be good to speak of old times."

He watched her ascend the steps and pass into the big, silent dwelling. It was in his heart to kiss the pavement where she had stood. Dmitri's was a nature unhappy unless it had one higher to serve. The finding of Nastasia was a glorious event for him. He could watch over her.

Tuesday night. Dmitri came and many Tuesdays after that. At first they spoke of their childhood in Russia, Dmitri listening like a butler to a talkative mistress, who remained always aloof while he was always the menial. The great house awed him, the beauty of Nastasia held him spell-bound. It was hard to serve a lady who seemed to want for nothing. Then, one night, tiring of reminiscence, she suggested that he dance with her.

Dmitri trembled with joy and fear. He held her—delicately as though she were a flower.

"Your highness is too good to me I fear——"

"Hold me tighter, Dmitri. I am not made of glass."

"But, my princess——" Still, willingly he complied. He did not relinquish her hand when they sat down. Her eyes held him with their magic. He pressed her fingers to his lips.

"Can you not forget the past Dmitri?" she asked softly: "We live in another land. We are not princess and servant. The old order changeth. I have a confession to make; I am but the companion of the woman who owns this house. She is old and alone; but on Tuesdays she goes away. I was so miserably lonesome until you came, Dmitri."

As a boy he had dared to love her. His greatest dream came true as her lips yielded to his.

"Princess, Nastasia, ou will be my princess always. You will be my wife as well?"

"Yes, Dmitri! A princess who shall cook her husband's food mend his clothes and——"

"Highness——" he drew her close, "for the first time, I thank God for the revolution!"

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

By Helen Rowland

MY Daughter, be not cast down if thine husband's heart be made of stone. For, a hard-boiled man turneth away from Beauty in distress and closeth his ears to the supplications of gold-diggers and grafters.

But a soft-hearted husband is like unto a blotter, wherson it is easy to make an impression. Yea, he is as a sponge which can be wrung dry, by a simple twist of the wrist.

Go to. When an hard-hearted husband pecketh his wife upon the cheek, in the morning, she turneth to her household or her beauty creams with an airy mind; for she knoweth that his invulnerability will keep him in the stroll and rar cow way until he returneth in the evening.

But, the wife of a tender-hearted man is filled with misgiving. She followeth him with her eyes until he turneth the corner, and with ner mind all day. For she knoweth his susceptibility.

She feareth the beggar at the corner—and the vendor who will sell him stale, wired flowers.

She feareth the book-agent who will persuade him to sign upon the dotted line and the "promoter" who will sell him "gilt-edged stock.

She feareth the "old pal" who s down and out and needeth a "loan" —and the misunderstood lady, who yearneth only for the moneys to "get home on."

Alas, upon pay-day, her soul knoweth no peace, until her sloved bath reached home with ir moneys intact and his arms empty of useless "gifts."

She feareth the "helpless widow" who cometh to him for "guidance" and the "appealing young thing who begreth him for "advice" in her troubles.

She feareth the jovial trio upon the corner, who are "making up a little foursome" or "celebrating with a "little party."

She feareth the insidious vamp, with the limpid eyes and the rouge-and-e—and the "old schoolmate who maketh a touch, in remem brance of "the happy days."

Verily, verily, the wife of a soft hearted man liveth in perpetual uncertainty, knowing not what a Jay or an houb may bring forth!

But the wife of a hard-boiled man liveth in security, even though she may dwell in cold storage.

For, she knoweth that neither grafters, nor dissemblers, nor vamps, nor four-flushers, nor blondes can melt the GLACIER locked within her husband's frozen breast!

SHE should have taken out a burglar insurance policy on him.

SHE claimed the dog was no good anyway because he barked in a tenor voice.

THE cat used to drag him all over the house.

WHENEVER there was a mouse in the parlor, he got up on the chairs with the women.

SHE says the only thing that made him valuable was that he had three gold teeth.

THE husband tried to make a good watch dog out of him by making him eat his meals off the Police Gazette.

BUT for three days he wouldn't touch a bite of food. He was holding out for the Ladies Home Journal.

HE was so effeminate that he always laid down in front of a full length mirror, so that he could watch himself sleep.

HE even buries his bones in beauty clay.

HIS mistress couldn't get him out of the house one afternoon because his nose was shiny.

HE bit a robber the other day and was sick for a week.

THE burglar probably didn't agree with him.

HE was so scared of noises that the noiseless glove grew up to hate him.

HE had such a wonderful pedigree that he thought it was common to play with police dogs.

HE wouldn't even have anything to do with scotch terriers for fear they'd be breaking the 18th Amendment.

HIS poor mistress is worried sick. She's afraid that the people who stole her dog won't return him, but her husband is scared to death they will.

TO CLEAN CANE CHAIRS

Brush with a stiff clean brush. Colored wickerwork should not be cleaned with soap and water, but rubbed with a duster moistened with paraffin. A little furniture polish sparingly rubbed on will help to get rid of the smell. White cane chairs may be washed with salt and water in the proportion of four tablespoons of salt to a gallon of water. Use a small brush, and do not make the cane work too wet, or it will crack. Rinse, wipe, and dry in a current of fresh air.

AIR AN AID TO BEAUTY

By Marie Jeritza.

FALL is the very best time of the year for long walks. You can go barebeaded at this season without fear of freckles, tan and sunburn, which are a real problem during the hot weather. The warmer days of September are glorious on the beach. The air has just enough sharpness to make the water seem warm, while a sun bath in a sheltered nook will prove a marvelous stimulation.

Modern city dwellers are making use of city roof tops more and more as a means of taking full advantage of fresh air and sunshine. If you have an available roof top, I suggest that you spend a few minutes there each morning, practising setting up exercises, deep breathing exercises, dancing steps or other gymnastic drills. Be sure to wear loose comfortable clothing while you exercise, or, better still, slip into your gym suit.

I suggest that you skip the rope as part of your regime of exercise. This is great fun, as you doubtless remember from your little girl days. Also it is one of the most valuable limbering up exercises and will reduce the size of your ankles or develop them to symetry if they are too thin, provided you jump rope systematically.

Try to get an hour's walk every day, and a long hike into the lovely Autumn country whenever you can find leisure and opportunity. Go bare headed when you can. Fresh air and sunshine are a marvelous tonic for hair and scalp.

Let sunlight freely into your home. We cannot have too much sunshine. Modern authorities agree that it possesses cleansing, purifying and stimulating properties that cannot be overestimated.

How To Care For Varicose or Swollen Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply as directed night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even piles are quickly relieved. All druggists sell lots of it.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Boston Druggists Make This Offer

Money Back If One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness and bloating that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gaspy. You think perhaps you are suffocating.

You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done?

Just one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief, but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have chronic indigestion at all?

With this wonderful medicine you can overcome indigestion or dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach or any abnormal condition that keeps the stomach in constant rebellion, and one bottle will prove it.

Over 6 000 bottles sold in one small New Jersey town last year—and the best druggists the country over concede that its phenomenal sales are due to the fact that the most stubborn chronic cases are promptly conquered. Ask for Dare's Mentha Pepsin; pleasant to take, health building stomach elixir that regular pharmacists anywhere in America guarantee.

X-RAY

Examination, consultation, trial treatment and medicine absolutely free to all who call before Oct. 24. The wonderful power of the X-ray in the cure of many chronic diseases is proved by the fact that they are seven thinking people to investigate. Many de scription—catarrh, bronchitis, deafness, stom ach, nerve and skin troubles. Don't delay, this great disease may be conquered. Dr. Daniel J. Walsh, 24 Pi Richard St., will make good the above offer.

Coincidence

A DANCER'S WIFE, well known in Boston social circles, was divorced by her husband, DANIEL J. WALSH, on the ground of incompatibility of temperament that all love is dead. The wife charged that DANIEL J. WALSH had struck her. DANIEL J. WALSH is a telephone operator in this city. He is single, handsome and a graduate of the Boston Latin School. He is also a graduate of the MIDI SESSION in the face of such accusations and testimony, the court granted DANIEL J. WALSH, M. D. and made null the bonds of matrimony.

Recently Mrs. Benson's father, MR. G. A. FISHER, was taken to the HOME OF CAPITAL GARDENS AT REVERE BEACH for treatment by Dr. CAMPBELL of REVERE, was afflicted with kidney disease. Mrs. Benson, knowing of the success of DANIEL J. WALSH, M. D. He did so and Mr. Fisher's condition has been greatly increased in vigorous until I could scarcely recognize him. Dr. Campbell and Dr. Walsh physician was called who gave me some medicine for a few days. Dr. Walsh came. But the pain soon continued. I took it all day and night. Dr. Campbell and Dr. Walsh consulted DANIEL J. WALSH, M. D. and decided on a treatment which resulted in my being relieved of the pain. I am now in perfect health and am going to see Dr. Walsh and Dr. Campbell and tell them how much I appreciate their kindness.

Mrs. Benson.

Happy New England

Her Busier Industries Are MORE Active, and Even the Laggards Are Picking Up.

Recently renewed activity in the shoe and textile industries of New England, according to a bulletin of the United States Employment Service, has provided employment for many workers.

Business conditions in New England ARE better and prospects for the remainder of the year continue to be encouraging.

Even the cotton textile industry, which has been in a bad way the world over, is picking up again. The volume of employment is increasing.

The mills of the Dwight Company of Chicopee, employing 650 hands, are on a full-time schedule after nearly a year and a half of part-time operation. Amoskeag is making greater use of one of the larger units of its immense plant. The sale of standard textiles for the last three months exceeded production by 253,000,000 yards.

Limerick Mills, at Limerick, Maine, operating night and day, is about to double its capacity and spindle equipment The mill of the Ware [Mass.] Woolen Company is on full time again, as are the Stirling Mills, the Ipswich Mills plant and the mill of the Lawrence Manufacturing Company at Lowell, together with the Collinsville plant of the American Woolen Company in that city.

Only a few days ago there were printed figures showing that a group of 59 retail establishments in Boston reported an increase in September's business over the same month last year. This followed the report of an even larger increase for August.

The Bay State continues to hold second place in boot and shoe production, close upon the heels of New York State. Production in the shoe industry throughout New England, which might be expected to show a slackening at about this time, holds to a degree much greater than was the case one year ago. A few factories still are working at capacity. It has been a good "shoe" year.

There is nothing much the "matter" with New England except that some of her most talkative sons WILL insist upon taking a Dean Inge-y view of things. The orators should reverse the picture occasionally and look upon the brighter side.

They MIGHT remind us, for example, that one automobile in every 15 in the United States is owned by a New Englander.

Do they KNOW that 46 per cent. of the rubber boots and rubber shoes manufactured in the United States are made in Massachusetts? In New England, this ONE industry employs between 15,000 and 20,000 workers and pays nearly $20,000,000 annually in wages. Of twenty-three establishments engaged in the industry in the United States, ten are located in Massachusetts, four in Connecticut, three in Rhode Island.

In thirty years the Watertown plant of the Hood Rubber Company has grown to thirty times its original size! This great plant employs 8,000 workers, a good-sized town by itself. . . . The Fells factory of the Boston Rubber Shoe Company, in Malden, will reopen November 1.

The Cape Cod territory has raised this year more than one-half of all the cranberries produced in the United States; Maine's potato crop is reported to be not only the largest, but the best in the country and, all in all, the New Englander who does not discover a great many reasons for a particularly fervent observance of November's great festival this year will be a most dismal and melancholy person.

One of the Morgans once said something about the folly of being "bearish" on the U. S. A. Taking anything but the optimistic view of New England is QUITE as shortsighted.

The Box Office Test

Cleansing the Stage

Henry E. Dixey asks the fairer, if not the weaker, sex to assume the task of cleansing the stage.

In the Victorian era his appeal might have won. In this day of equal rights man cannot escape from his share of responsibility so easily.

If you watch the attendance at the average indecent play you will find both sexes represented. The infection of debasement shows little discrimination.

Hence, if there is to be successful recovery, men and women will both have to lend a hand.

The present season on the New York stage is starting auspiciously, with the prurient appeal less prominent than for years.

That may or may not be a good omen, for the season is young. But if clean and wholesome plays are successful the fact of their profitableness will prove a powerful reinforcement to those who want a clean stage for the sake of decency chiefly.

The Family Doctor

Who So Competent?

Man's body has many organs, and it is necessary that there should be specialists in their care and cure.

But man has only one soul, and it gets very close to the good family doctor.

So it is pleasant news that this useful servant is to come into his own again.

The new trend toward preventive medicine, as Dr. Haven Emerson pointed out at New Haven, requires some competent person to make the periodical examinations which sensible Americans will soon want.

Who so competent as your trusted doctor?

Ideas Wanted---

Especially One Idea

The Pennsylvania Railroad asks its employes to volunteer "new ideas for the improvement of the service."

In the news you read, "Twenty new bus lines were incorporated in August." There is "an idea" in the motorbus lines that will cause the railroads trouble if they ignore it. And there is the flying machine "idea," that, in spite of the National Government's sluggishness, will make railroad values shrink and shrink.

ON UNDERSTANDING MODERN WOMEN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

H. G. WELLS confesses to London reporters:

"After thirty years of observing and writing about women, I feel that I really know nothing about the question."

Tolstoy, in one of his unpublished manuscripts recently found in Russia, made the gloomy observation:

"Women in modern times seem to be possessed of devils. They career around like cats on a roof."

With these master minds giving women up in despair what chance has a poor Jiggs to understand Maggie?

In the past anyone who announced that he "understood women" gained an immediate following. But if he lived long enough he usually ended in the frame of mind of Wells and Tolstoy.

Yet the reason men haven't understood women has not been the fault of the women—or the men.

The essential separating difference has been training.

Says the scientist, Dorsey, in his "Why We Behave Like Human Beings":

"Men do not 'understand' women. How can they? But the reason is not because woman's nature is fundamentally different from man's; rather that ten or twenty or fifty years of having to live 'like a woman' go into her make-up.

"The two sexes may 'grow up together,' but they travel divergent roads. Men and women are emotionally different—by training.

"Boys are conditioned to face one world; girls to face another. The two sexes do not see alike because their eyes have not learned to look at the same things alike; for each sex the glasses have a different color, focus and range."

What is needed for men to understand women is not more observation, but an evolution of things that will bring the lives they live nearer together.

The past few decades have made large strides in this direction.

Co-education, women in business, woman suffrage, "the new freedom," all have come in recent years.

If the present trend continues, fifty years hence there may be less difficulty in "understanding women."

(Copyright, 1926, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

MISUNDERSTANDINGS IN THE FAMILY CIRCLE

A woman never grows so old that she does not love attention from her husband and children.

When sons and daughters come it happens in some instances that the mother is neglected by the husband, who buys lavishly for his daughter but is penurious with his wife.

Husband is willing to send his son to college and set him up in business, but when it comes to providing as generously for his wife, he can't see the need of it.

A husband wants as much love and affection as his wife expends on the children When he can't get it he begins to feel that all he is good for in the eyes of his family is to furnish money and transportation

Sometimes strained conditions are brought about by the more demonstrative child in comparison to the more self strained disposition.

A parent is apt to feel more kindly toward the child expressing eager appreciation of the parental favors. The one who is naturally kind and thoughtful gets the most favors; but it is not always the one who expresses the most who is the most loyal and true and affectionate

OddsandEnds of the Town

A bad habit is second nature with most of us, but easily broken with proper mental application. At first a cobweb, then a cable, according to an old proverb.

MURDER!!!

"DID you read where Vincent Lopez was murdered?" asked his companion in the newspaper room at the Public Library.

"No!" exclaimed the companion. "I don't see anything about it in The Boston Evening American. What paper are you reading?" Adjusting his spectacles to a proper angle, the first man discovered that he was reading the Buenos Aires Herald of September 23, and that a Vincent Lopez, (not the orchestra leader) was the murder victim.

QUEEN MARIE

It is not generally known that MRS. VINCENT ASTOR, who was selected by MAYOR "JIMMIE" WALKER of NEW YORK to welcome QUEEN MARIE of RUMANIA upon her arrival, is the granddaughter of the late ALVIN ADAMS of Boston, pioneer of the express business.

SHERIFF'S HAT

CHARLES A. HEINTZ, keeper of the celebrities of the underworld while they are awaiting arraignment in the SUFFOLK SUPERIOR COURT is often mistaken for a visiting sheriff from the wilds of ARIZONA or thereabouts, because of the fact that he wears a ten-quart sombrero. "Honest, I'm from BOSTON," he tells the mistaken ones.

JUDICIAL FAN.

JUDGE JOHN BURKE, who recently resigned from the MUNICIPAL COURT bench, is an ardent baseball fan as ever watched a game. Old timers recall the days of the BOSTON NATIONALS when the park was known as the WALPOLE STREET GROUNDS and of seeing HIS HONOR out there day after day rooting for the home team.

HORSES.

One famous horse is going to have a good home for the winter—that is she is not going to associate with the common herd until the races are called next Spring. She is MARGARET DILLON owned by CHARLES H. TRAISER, Boston merchant. MARGARET is housed in MR. TRAISER'S private stable in MILTON and getting the best of care. MR. TRAISER is a great lover of the horse, although a bit partial to his star pacer.

BUREAU OF EFFICIENCY.

We haven't visited a public department in a long time so laden with courtesy and efficiency as is the office of ADJUTANT GENERAL JESSE M. STEVENS. The Adjutant-General has a worthy assistant in COLONEL PORTER B CHASE and the clerks not only know how to furnish information but they do it with refreshing promptness and cheerfulness.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE Wife and the Boy have ganged Lee Randall again. They don't call it "ganging." But that's what it is. And they've done it ever since the youngster was old enough to grab for anything he wanted and yell if he don't get it.

Lee Randall is one of those easy going, hard working old pugs that America produces in such huge numbers to supply the matrimonial market. Not very bright but everlastingly patient and loyal. Calls his wife "the little woman and thinks she is the brainiest, finest most efficient female in existence.

With which opinion Mrs. Lee agrees perfectly.

In her way she is fond of Lee, but she never forgets, nor lets him forget, that she conferred an everlasting favor upon him when she took his name and allowed him to assume her upkeep. Lee feels that, too. This makes it even easier for her to get by with her particular brand of murder.

Her Wonder Child

Mrs. Lee has produced one child, young Harold, aged fourteen. Naturally she feels that any child of HERS is a record achievement. Nor has she ever tried to hide the fact from little Harold. He likes his Dad but unconsciously he has absorbed the maternal attitude toward Lee. It is plain that both mother and son feel that Lee should be very grateful for the privilege of fathering such a prodigy.

Usually Lee is, for he agrees with The Wife that the boy is the most remarkable youngster on earth But now and then he rebels against Mrs. Lee's program.

"I don't think you ought to do that, Lizzie," he'll demur. "It's going to spoil the boy, having things like that. And besides we can't afford it."

At which point a peculiar glassy film covers Mrs. Lee's eyes. She has heard this argument before and as usual she doesn't believe a word of it. She is sure that Lee can afford it if he wants. And if he can't afford it, it's because he hasn't any business sense. She is positive that she could manage much better than Lee if she had his job She'd make the boss come to time—she'd see that she got a raise! It's his own stupid fault if he hasn't the money. What's more, he probably has the money only he's too miserly to spend it.

But if he thinks that HER child is going to suffer just because she's had the bad luck to marry a stupid, stingy man—

She Gets Busy

So the glassy stare comes over Mrs. Lee's eyes and she gets busy. Forthwith she and young Harold gang Dad.

There are sulks.

Injured silence.

Mean, cutting remarks

If these don't work the batteries are redoubled. Harold is presented as a suffering martyr crushed because he has to "be different from other fellows. Other fellows' fathers are enough for them to give them things, but Harold's doesn't. Harold's father doesn't care how his only son suffers. The other boys laugh at him. They boast about their fathers -- they taunt Harold about his. Harold is grieving himself sick over it. All his life is going to be embittered by it, probably he'll get an inferiority complex—"

The theme of this choral is furnished by Mrs Lee but Harold contributes a snuffling obligato that is tremendously effective. Together they manage to make Lee feel that he is of the lowest order of brute. And he ends by giving the boy what he wants, if it is humanly possible.

There you have a familiar cross section of contemporary American domestic life.

What do you think of it?

Relativity of Motion

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

NO BETTER illustration could well be given of what is ordinarily meant by relativity of motion than that of two trains moving in such a manner that an observer in one of them is unable by sight alone to detect the direction and speed of the motion of his own train.

It may be moving while the other is standing and yet the other may seem to him to be in motion while his train is standing; or the two being in motion the same way both may seem to an observer in either to be standing still, etc.

A daily and splendid example of relativity of motion is furnished by the apparent passage of the sun through the sky from east to west. This appearance is purely an effect of relativity being caused by the actual rotation of the earth on its axis from west to east, in consequence of which any fixed point on the earth moves eastward with relation to the sun, making the sun seem to move westward with relation to the observer. At night the same appearance of westward motion is presented by the stars.

If you could travel westward around the earth as fast as the earth rotates eastward on its axis, the two motions would be relatively so connected that both would appear to be destroyed, and sky and earth would seem to be standing still.

But you would be moving around with reference to the surface of the earth at about a thousand miles an hour if you were on the equator.

These examples suffice to show how relativity is involved in the case that you mention. And this phase of relativity, although known and considered in science and philosophy ages before Einstein was born, plays a fundamental part in the Einstein theory.

That is shown by his own account of how he was first led to speculate on the general subject of relativity by hearing the story of a workman who, having survived a fall from a building, declared that it seemed to him not that he was falling, but that the earth was jumping up to meet him.

Nevertheless, the Einstein theory goes vastly beyond the range of phenomena open to everybody's observation as a consequence of the relativity of motion. Einstein, it has been said, "built up a principle in which space, time and matter are relative—hence the principle of relativity."

This involves conceptions that offend common sense; that is, the general opinion of the way things exist and act in nature the Einstein theory of "general relativity" makes the assumption that space what we have always known, and thought that we understood, under the name of "time," serves (though as far as common sense is concerned mysteriously and incredibly) as the "fourth dimension," which, when combined with the three actual and physically perceptible dimensions—length, breadth and thickness," constitutes the "space time" of Einstein.
